The Russians Have Troubles

With the dismissal of Dmitri Shepilov the Russians touched off another wave of speculation.

Without question, the Kremlin move is somehow tied in with their planning in the critical area of the Middle East, which again is at a crisis peak. Consensus of students of Soviet affairs is that this also means a return to a tougher policy such as featured the days of the late Joe Stalin.

But, perhaps the soundest of these students also have a reservation as to whether a Molotov and Gromyko combination will be able to bring it off. In a very real sense these two represent the old reactionary conservative wing which, like their counterparts in other parts of the world, never forget anything but also never learn anything either. The world has moved on since the days of the Stalin terror. The restive Communist masses in Poland have forced a change.
The martyrs in Hungary have left their evidence of resistance to iron rule. Even in the Soviet Union itself there is news which indicates the educated classes of that country, especially the students and the intellectuals, are themselves in favor of at least a small amount of personal freedom.

It is rather well demonstrated that even though the Stalinist techniques did, in fact, seal off the Soviet people, they nonetheless were not in a vacuum entirely filled with Communist teachings. They were taught to read and write, and so they were taught to compare. They learned and earned money and wanted to possess more.

Troops Unreliable

There are yet other factors.
Poland and Hungary, and much less dynamic evidence of dissent in other satellite countries, cannot have failed to convey their deeper meaning to the Kremlin board of directors. It is that the troops in those countries are not reliable. What now is known to be a fact is that the Soviet soldiers who for some time had been garrisoned in Hungary were so unreliable and so sympathetic with the people of the country they occupied, they had to be removed and a new division of armor and infantrymen sent to replace them.

None of this can be changed by a terror. It can be silenced and contained so long as the terror is powerful and the pressure maintained. But, the attitude will be there all along.
When the Communist board members initiate the old policy, they may find that it doesn't work as well as it did when Stalin was turning the screws.
The world has moved on and this has had an effect in and out of Russia itself.

Actually, the present situation has its counterpart in the past. In 1946 and 1947 the policy was to try and make partners of the satellites. Tito was praised and exalted. The worldwide network of the international Cominform was established, and for a time, all went well.

Time of Reversal

Then Tito, encouraged by the prestige he had earned, and which the Kremlin had recognized, broke with Stalin.
There came at that time a reversal. The cold war began with the West. The secret police ruthlessly carried out purges within all elements of Soviet citizenship. The satellites lost every shred of independence.

With Stalin's death there was a return, in a more emphatic manner, to the period of 1947.
In addition to an agreement with Tito, and praise of him, there was the attack on Stalin's character and methods. This made fools of Molotov, Gromyko and all others who had been loyal to Stalin.

Now, because of the satellite discontent, there is indicated a second return to sternness and, perhaps, to terror. They may find it even more difficult and more harmful to their over-all economy than did Stalin.

That is the real hope as the West seeks to find a way, by all means short of war or physical intervention, to help that discontent to flourish. The tragedy of the moment is that the Middle East problem, in some degree, nullifies that hope.

PILOT TRAPPED, INJURED—Robert Pitts, 39, of 32 W. Peachtree Pl., NW, was seriously injured Monday when he was trapped for 25 minutes in wreckage of a four-passenger plane which crashed during takeoff at Fulton County Airport. High octane gasoline spewing from the plane tank made rescue hazardous. Firemen used hacksaws to avoid creating sparks. Pitts was taken to Grady Hospital. He suffered possible fracture of both legs, head and internal injuries.

Teen Driver Training Is Defeated

By WILLIAM M. BATES

A bill recommended by Gov.
Griffin to teach driver training to Georgia youngsters in high schools died in the House Monday.

The measure was tabled by its sponsors after it ran into a buzz-saw of opposition. The bill is dead for this session.

It had been billed as the best long-range answer to the highway accident toll in Georgia which last year claimed more than a thousand lives.

SAFETY PACKAGE
Griffin had included the driver training bill in his highway safety package.

But the Griffin administration fared better on other fronts. With no dissenting votes, the House sent to the Senate two administration bills to provide free hospitalization care for needy persons.

Administration House leaders beat down—for a second time—a powerfully backed drive for an investigation of timberland holdings by paper corporations in Georgia. The action means the investigation is dead for this

NO COST ESTIMATE
Rep. Howard Overby of Hall County, chairman of the House
State of the Republic Committee, urged passage of the driver education program as a bill "that will go a long way to reduce the terrific highway death toll."

He said the program was expected to cost $25 per student but he had no estimate of the total cost. Rep. James A. Mackay of DeKalb, one of the oppositional, said it was expected to cost between $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 a year.

However, Overby pointed out the

'Impeach Justices' Plea Hit, Then Passes House

By CELESTINE HIBLEY

Over the impassioned protest of one member that "we're making ourselves ridiculous before the world" and playing into the hands of the Communists, the Georgia House pushed through a resolution Monday calling for the impeachment of six members of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Vote on the measure was 107 for to 33 against with 37 members not voting.

Fight for passage of the resolution was led by Floor Leader Colbert Hawkins who said, "The time has come when we in the South in our righteous indignation and under our right as free people should memorialize Congress and ask the impeachment of these members of the Supreme Court."

Clayton Effort To Tax Airport Is Withdrawn

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

Clayton County legislators Monday withdrew measures to tax and investigate Atlanta Municipal Airport after reaching a compromise agreement with city officials and Fulton legislators.

The agreement came at 3 p.m.
Monday in a State Capitol office, shortly before the taxing measure was to be called up on the House calendar for passage.

The measures were withdrawn after the city agreed to turn over to Clayton all the rents for this year from 32 houses on airport property in Clayton which the city rents, and to pay Clayton $189 a year for each of some 38 children who attend Clayton schools.

A House bill to curb lottery Monday was lying near death in a Senate committee but nobody seemed to know why.

The bill, which would provide a mandatory sentence of six months to a year on the second conviction of lottery, was introduced early in the session and passed the House by an overwhelming vote of 137 to 8.

In the Senate, the bill was referred to the Penal and Correctional Affairs Committee. Last week the committee voted to table the bill. Now, with the Legislature in its last week, the committee must act fast or the bill will die.

URBAN OPERATIONS
The bill, introduced by Chatham
Reps. Frank Cheatham, Edward T. Brennan and Edgar P. Eyer, is aimed at curbing large lottery operations in cities.

Sen. Grover Newman of Buchanan, member of the penal committee, said he moved that the bill be tabled because "I heard it was brought up in the House to embarrass the senator from that district. He was opposed to the bill."

Newman, a state revenue agent and former sheriff of Haralson and Paulding counties, said, "If the senator is not for it, we owe him the courtesy to table it."

'PLENTY GOING ON'
He added, "I don't know why they just picked on lottery anyway. There's plenty more going on in Savannah."

Sen. Ralph L. Crawford, Savannah criminal lawyer, denied that he opposed the bill and said he had made no statement that it was introduced to "embarrass" him.
"It might have been introduced to

Bills To Cut State Taxes Choked Off

Rep. Wilson Sees
'58 Car Tag Slash

By JACK NELSON

Two bills to reduce state taxes were officially dead for this session Monday, buried in a House subcommittee headed by Rep.
John Sheffield, an administration stalwart.

One of the bills authored by Rep. Wilson Brooks of Fulton, would have allowed deduction of federal income tax from state income tax returns. The other, by Rep. Ed Wilson of Bibb, would have lowered automobile tag prices to their old level.

Both Brooks and Wilson declared that opponents of the bills did not want to let them get to the House floor for discussion because of fear they would have passed.

PREDICTS PASSAGE
Wilson predicted passage of his bill at the 1958 legislative session.
He said, "There will be sufficient power in the House to get it on the floor next session. The legislators will have to go back and face their electorate before next session."

He said, "There's no doubt about it. The bill would have passed if it had been considered by the entire House. As it happened, a seven-man subcommittee blocked the bill. The administration killed it."

Brooks said he was "very sorry." "I don't know whether I'll bring it back up at the next session," he said. "I'll have to wait until then and see how it would affect the state's economy."

CAMPAIGN PLEDGES?
Rep. Edgar Blacklock of Clayton, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee which relegate the bills to the subcommittee, said:

"I haven't received a report on the bills from the subcommittee and I haven't had a request from the author of either bill for a subcommittee report."

Asked if he was implying that the authors were "not sincere" in introducing the bills but were just going through the motions to satisfy campaign pledges, Blacklock said:

"No comment."

Grounded Space Ship Will Recreate The World of 200 Miles Above Earth

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Feb. 18 (U-P)—Air Force plans for a simulated space ship, in which men may find out what it is like 200 miles above the earth without leaving the ground, were disclosed today.

Dr. Richard Roche, head of the research department of Litton Industries, Beverly Hills, Calif., said his company had been developing the altitude chamber for 3 1/2 years, and planned to make it available to the Air Force office of Scientific Research in April or May.

Roche told an astronautics symposium—a gathering of 600 rocket and missile experts—that the simulated space laboratory would include an entry way 8 by 13 feet and a vacuum chamber 15 by 35 feet.

Safety controls would restore normal conditions inside a chamber with two seconds in an emergency.

Roche said the man or men in the chamber would wear a special suit pressurized to five pounds per square inch of oxygen, "about the same as putting him inside a football."

Roche said that without this pressurization the space pilot could not move at all, could not even flex a finger.

Italy GI, Marietta Twin To Reunite With Dad, 8 Brothers and Sisters journey to meet for the first time since infancy his father and nine brothers and sisters, including his twin sister in Marietta.

The long search for his family ended last Christmas for Special ist Second Class Malcolm Ware, stationed in Verona, when he received a letter from the twin sister, Mrs. Walter Knapp, of 130 Carruth Dr., Marietta, wrote she had found their father, Perkins Justice, 81, now ill, at Memphis, Tennessee.

Rise to 5 Pct. On GI Loans Is Rejected

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (U-P)—The House veterans committee today turned down a proposed 5 per cent interest rate on veterans home loans. It voted to continue the present 4 1/2 per cent rate.

The committee approved and sent to the House a bill liberalizing home building requirements under the guaranteed direct loan program available to veterans in small towns and rural areas.

But by a vote reported as 11-5, it rejected an amendment offered by Rep. Adair (R-Ind) to raise the interest rate from 4 1/2 to 5 per cent.

The increased interest rate was urged by the Eisenhower administration to bring loans guaranteed by the Veterans Administration into line with FHA-insured home loans. Administration spokesmen said the rise would make more financing available to prospective home builders among veterans.

The committee's action sent to the House a bill making available approximately 450 million dollars in new and available funds for direct government loans to veterans in non-city areas.

Of the total amount, 150 million would be new money for direct loan activity through July 25, 1958.

Of the rest, the VA still has approximately 117 million of funds still on hand from the present direct loan program, and 100 million more already authorized by Congress for loans through June 30. Another 87 million is expected to be available through reappropriation and repayments to the direct loan revolving fund.

The committee tomorrow is to consider proposals to make another billion dollars available for direct loans by authorizing use of national service life insurance trust funds.

Committee members estimated that the 450 million dollars authorized through July 25, 1958, would be enough to build 40,000 new homes in non-city areas where most GI loan activity has been in old houses.

The bill, authored by Chairman Teague (D-Tex), has as its principle that the VA should be

Rights Panel Ends Airing On March 5

By C. P. TRUSSELL
(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 — A Senate subcommittee taking testimony on civil rights bills voted 2-to-1 today to terminate hearings
March 5.

The constitutional rights panel of the Judiciary Committee, headed by Sen. Hennings (D-Mo.), thus made impotent the recent addition of two Southern members.

The fight on civil rights legislation has been going on for years. The House has passed civil rights bills but the Senate has not.

UNDER SENATE RULES

Senate rules permit filibuster.
This is the exercise of the privilege of unlimited debate to talk a bill to death by delaying voting to a point where it is abandoned to get general legislative programs and required appropriations through Congress.

Today's subcommittee action was taken as the Eisenhower administration was pressing hard for the enactment of civil rights measures. Nearly 20 bills were before Congress. It seemed the administration would accept any one of them, in a pinch.

The fight was getting bitter. It appeared the Hennings subcommittee was in control. And its two new members, Democratic Senators Johnston of South Carolina and Ervin of North Carolina, seemed ineffective against the civil rights tide.

MUST FACE COMMITTEE

However, even though, as expected, the Hennings subcommittee approves a civil rights bill, the measure still must face the full Judiciary Committee. This is headed by Sen. Eastland (D-Miss.), unrelenting foe of any civil rights measure.

Johnston and Ervin indicated they would demand that the full committee hold hearings that would provide "adequate" testimony. They held that the Hennings panel had not given this.

Ervin and Johnston complained they were at early breakfasts

Don't Coerce Israel, Warns Sen. Johnson

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18—Senate Democratic leader Lyndon
B. Johnson of Texas admonished President Eisenhower today to avoid "coercion" in this country's relationship with Israel.

Sen. Johnson in effect took a stand alongside the most powerful Republicans of the Senate in deploring talk of U.N. sanctions against the Israelis for their refusal to withdraw from the Gaza strip and the Gulf of Aqaba.

While Senate opinion against sanctions was hardening in both parties, some administration officials said privately that if forced to choose, as they put it,
"between Israel and the United Nations," this government would back the United Nations.

This was their way of hinting that if, in the event of breakdown of direct negotiations between this country and Israel, the United Nations should vote for sanctions, the United States

U.N. Greeks, British Air Cyprus Row

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Feb. 18 (AP)—Britain and Greece clashed bitterly in the United Nations today over Cyprus. The British asked that the U. N. call on Greece to stop supplying arms to Cyprus terrorists, while Greece demanded the U. N. approve the right of Cypriots to chart their own political future.

Both nations, partners in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization but at odds over the future of the strategic eastern Mediterranean island, introduced rival resolutions in the 80-nation U. N. Political Committee.

Cmdr. Allan Noble, the British minister of state for foreign affairs, and Evangelos Averoff, the Greek foreign affairs minister, spoke at length in appeals for support.

The British resolution would have the U. N. General Assembly note the charges that Greece had supplied arms, ammunition and money to Greek Cypriot terrorists, and call upon Greece to take "effective measures" to prevent such support or encouragement.

The Greek resolution would have the Assembly take note that the situation on Cyprus has "gravely deteriorated," and express the wish that Cypriots be given "the opportunity to determine their own future by the application of their right to self-determination."

Reunited Elizabeth and Duke Tour a Cheering Portugal

By BENJAMIN WELLES

LISBON, Feb. 18—The Portuguese nation today joyously welcomed Queen Elizabeth II of Britain and the Duke of Edinburgh as they landed here from the royal yacht Britannia to start a three-day state visit.

The broad Tagus River was jammed with barges, tankers and ships of all kinds blowing their whistles in welcome. The happy, smiling countenance of the young Queen and the manifest good humor shown by the Duke were especially noted and appreciated by the Portuguese.

These were taken as incontrovertible proof of the royal couple's mutual devotion—notwithstanding rumors to the contrary—and partly as a tribute to the tonic effect of two days' rest and privacy aboard the royal yacht at Setubal, 25 miles south along the coast.

TWO-DAY REUNION

The Queen flew from London to Portugal Saturday to enjoy the two-day private reunion with her husband, whom she had not seen since last October when he began a world-encompassing tour of the Commonwealth in the stately black and white royal yacht.

As the young couple stepped ashore this morning in bright sunshine onto what generations of visiting British mariners have called Black Horse Square, because of its graceful equestrian statue of King Joan the First, they knew instinctively the meaning of the Portuguese expression "velhos amigos" (old friends).

From President Francisco Craveiro Lopes and his wife, who had visited Britain last year, through gold-braided dignitaries and down to the raggedest urchin perching atop a crowded roof, Portugal was truly happy to see them. Britain and Portugal are

His Self-Service Tap Turns On the Plumber

GASTONIA, N.C., Feb. 18 (AP)—Sheriff's officers arrested a 35-year-old plumber here on whisky charges this weekend after they found in his home a kitchen spigot that would mix its own drinks.

Officers said an ordinary 42-gallon water tank outside the kitchen contained moonshine whisky. A pipe led under the kitchen sink to a valve which could direct either water or whisky to the spigot.

Alimony Paid By Jail Term Of 16 Months

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (AP)—William Singer, 52, jailed for failing to pay back alimony, was finally ordered released today — after sweating it out in a cell for 16 months.

"Cruel and inhuman" treatment, declared State Supreme Court Justice Owen McGovern in ordering Singer freed.

Singer was locked up Oct. 25, 1955, on the complaint of his former wife, Anna, who obtained a contempt of court citation against him for allegedly failing to pay $1,400 in alimony arrears.

The judge said Singer must start paying the original court-ordered payments of $12 weekly to his ex-wife—but he can forget the arrears except for a nominal $4—he's already paid the price in jail time.

GuardDoom Seen Under Army's Plan

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP)—The president of the subcommittee today testified that the Army is trying to drive the Guard down "the road to extinction."

Maj. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh also took another swipe at Secretary of Defense Wilson for having said that during the Korean War the Guard was a sort of "draft-dodging" haven.

No evidence has been produced or can be, Walsh said, to back up "the extremely serious, slanderous, and irresponsible charges which have been leveled against the National Guard."

STRONG TERMS

Walsh spoke out in strong terms before a House Armed Forces subcommittee.

Chairman Brooks (D-La.) said Wilson has been invited to appear before the subcommittee any day this week and "we hope he will avail himself of this invitation."

The subcommittee is taking a look at the Army's six months reserve training program and the plan to apply it April 1 to all National Guard recruits who have had no military training.

If that is done, Walsh said, "we are going to lose 100,000 men in two years, and with that, we are on the road to extinction."

KISS OF DEATH

"If our alleged friends in the Pentagon are permitted to have their way," Walsh said, "then in truth we shall have had the kiss of death placed upon us . . ."

Ground units of the National Guard, on whom the new training system would be imposed, number about 400,000 men. Another 60,000 in the Air National Guard would be unaffected.

Whereas the Pentagon proposes to require six months of active duty for all new ground guardsmen, the Guard itself is willing to accept this only for those above 18½ years. It suggests 11 weeks training for those 17 to 18½ years old—who make up some 65 percent of the total. The subcommittee is expected to offer some kind of compromise.

IF WORKABLE

Walsh said the National Guard isn't opposed to six months of active duty for anybody if such a training program is workable.

But guardsmen are civilians who have to make a living or complete an education, he said, and the system has to be integrated into their lives.

Sister Doubts Missing Nurse Was Telephoner

SWANQUARTER, N.C., Feb. 18 (AP)—The fate of a New Jersey nurse who disappeared from her employer's yacht remained a mystery today as one sister cast doubts on the validity of the telephone call another sister reportedly got from the missing woman.

Sheriff C. J. Cahoon said he had not "closed the books" on the Feb. 9 disappearance of the nurse, Mrs. Mary Ann Seales, 33, Trenton, N.J.

The yacht owner, Dr. James T. Dodge, 46, triggered reports that Mrs. Seales, his nurse of 12 years, was alive and in Florida.

Ike's Appeal Wins New Offer by Israel

Insisting on Security Pledge; U.N. Mideast Debate Delayed

By The Associated Press

Israel, insisting on security from future attack, Monday was reported offering new proposals in reply to President Eisenhower's latest appeal to pull out of Egypt and Gaza.

The United Nations General Assembly at U.S. request Monday night put over further Middle-East debate until Thursday or later to allow Israel time to weigh Eisenhower's latest plea for Israeli withdrawal. It also allows the United States time for further talks.

DELAY PENALTY FLEA

The African-Asian group at the U.N., which has a heavy percentage of Arab country membership, delayed a move to ask Assembly punishment for Israel. The group has penalty resolutions almost ready for Assembly debate. But after the Assembly postponed its sessions, the group called off a meeting to approve a final draft of the resolutions.

An Israel spokesman predicted that the Assembly—scheduled to end its sessions Saturday—will have to delay action until after Thursday.

EBAN CALLED HOME

Israel's Ambassador Abba Eban has been called back to Jerusalem for consultations and will not be able to return with new instructions by then, the spokesman said.

Eban was called back by Israeli Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion who conferred in Jerusalem with U.S. Ambassador Edward Lawson and presented what were described as several new points for negotiation.

Israel has made it clear it wants some guarantees for shipping in the Gulf of Aqaba and for suppressing raiders based in the Gaza Strip before pulling invasion forces out of either area.

DEADLOCKED

Eban and Dulles are deadlocked on that. Dulles has promised only that the United States would regard the Gulf of Aqaba as an international waterway where Israel should have shipping rights that have been barred by Egyptian guns. But he has said the United States would not use force to insure those rights.

Dulles has also promised U.S. support for any U.N. move to have U.N. troops or observers

Missile Blow Killing Half Of U.S. Seen

By ALLEN DRURY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18—Civil Defense Administrator Val Peterson estimated today that a surprise enemy attack would kill more than 50 per cent of the American people, regardless of whether they had bomb shelters.

In addition, he told a House Government Operations subcommittee that the city evacuation plans which his agency is recommending will be "out the window" or "eliminated" as soon as the intercontinental ballistic missile is added to the world's arsenals.

The missile, with atomic or hydrogen warheads, is being developed by the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union.

NEW WEAPON

Peterson predicted the new weapon might come in "one or two years, or up to 10 years."

"In the final analysis," Peterson said, "there is no such thing as a nation being prepared for a thermonuclear (hydrogen) war."

The Civil Defense administrator testified on a bill by Rep. Chet Holifield (D-Calif.) to establish a Civil Defense department and give it the head Cabinet status.

He said he favored most of the objectives of the measure, but felt it placed too much stress on control by the federal government.

He said Civil Defense must be a cooperative project shared by the government with states and municipalities.

INDICATES DOUBTS

Peterson, who has expressed some skepticism concerning the value of shelters in previous appearances on Capitol Hill, again indicated doubts. He said for them to be effective "we would need to build shelters for probably 160,000,000 people."

"If we built the best shelters that can be built," he said, "we would still lose somewhere in the neighborhood of 40 to 45 per cent of our people in terms of the kinds of weapons available now, and in the near future we may lose more than one-half of them."

The Civil Defense administrator said he thought the cost of building adequate shelters would be "many times" the $7,500,000 estimate given the subcommittee last week by Dr. Edward Teller, prominent nuclear scientist.

He said he was not sure whether the cost of building adequate shelters would be "many times" the $7,500,000 estimate given the subcommittee last week by Dr. Edward Teller, prominent nuclear scientist.

Arthur Miller Indicted For Balking at Red Quiz

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP)—Arthur Miller, 41, playwright husband of actress Marilyn Monroe, was indicted on charges of contempt of Congress today for refusing to identify writers accused of pro-Communist activity.

The Federal Grand Jury that considered the case also returned a contempt indictment against Otto Nathan, New York University professor and executor of the estate of the late Albert Einstein.

PASSPORT INQUIRY

Both appeared before a House subcommittee on un-American activities last year in connection with an investigation of charges of passport abuses.

Miller, a Pulitzer Prize winner, issued a statement through his attorney saying he would seek dismissal of the indictment. He said the two questions he refused to answer were "irrelevant" to the inquiry.

"The contempt citation for which I must now stand trial was based on my refusal, on grounds of conscience, to name certain persons who were present at a meeting of authors nine years ago," Miller said.

Fire Laxity At Nursing Homes Hit

WARRENTON, Mo., Feb. 18 (UP)—The flash fire and explosion that reduced a nursing home here to ashes, killing 70 persons, brought nationwide demands today for stricter safety supervision of such establishments.

It was disclosed that the Katie Jane Memorial Home, one of eight run by the same family in Missouri, had been operating without a license pending a thorough check of wiring, improvement of sanitation of dish washing methods and preparation of more complete medical records.

Gov. James T. Blair Jr. said the home had been inadequately equipped with fire escapes, was not fireproof and had no sprinkler system.

FIREMEN COOL RUINS
Firemen had to pour water on the smoldering remains of the home to cool them off enough for the search for bodies of the victims, most of them elderly, infirm patients.

Earlier, the number of dead had been placed at 71, but it was lowered to 70 after one inmate of the home was found safe with relatives.

Searchers said nearly all the bodies had been burned so badly it was doubtful that they could ever be identified.

PROBE ORDERED

Blair ordered a three-day state investigation of the disaster, one of the worst hospital fires in history. The National Fire Protection Association in Boston called for comprehensive fire safety regulations for nursing homes. And in Washington, the U. S. Public Health service ordered a full-scale inquiry of the nation's nursing homes in an effort to prevent more tragedies.

Miller told the House group he belonged to the National Council of Arts, Sciences and Professions, which was placed on the attorney general's subversive list. He denied that he ever made application to join the Communist party.

The questions he refused to answer were: "Can you tell us who was there when you walked into the room?" and "Was Arnold D'Usseau chairman of this meeting of Communist party writers which took place in 1947 at which you were in attendance?"

Miller told the investigators he would "tell you anything about myself but cannot take responsibility for another human being."

In his statement today, Miller said he was advised by his counsel, Joseph Rauh, that "questions regarding the identity of the authors were not relevant to an investigation of passport abuses."

Fire Engine, Car Collide as Kudzu Burns

Burning kudzu vines on a railroad embankment just back of the Terminal Station damaged five cars in a parking lot and also resulted in damage to a fire engine and an automobile which collided as the fire truck answered the alarm.

The fire burned off vines on a steep embankment at the corner of Mitchell and Nelson streets. Firefighters said grease on the underside of cars parked in a lot above the kudzu vines caught fire, causing considerable damage to the automobiles.

German, Briton Outline NATO's Defense Here

Two European officials straight from intimate talks at St. Simons Island outlined in Atlanta Monday their approaches to European defense.

They were Kurt Kiesinger, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the German parliament's lower house (Bundestag), and Denis Healey, vice chairman of the Labor party's foreign affairs group.

Kiesinger told newsmen Germany believes a strengthened NATO could "localize" any outbreak of war in Europe and keep it from developing into an all-out atomic war.

'OUR ONLY HOPE'

"We cannot place our reliance on long-range atomic missiles," he said. "An enemy might attack and hope that public opinion in America would prevent atomic retaliation. If this happened, we'd be lost. If the missiles were launched we'd be lost also. Our only hope is to build up NATO to the point where we could fight a localized war and win."

Healey said NATO strategy should not be based on atomic weapons unless the United States provides such weapons to each of her allies.

He believes it would be better to try for a convention limiting the use of such weapons. The convention should specify the size of weapons and classify the targets. "If no agreement of this kind is possible," he said, "it is ridiculous to use even a small weapon. The enemy just replies with a larger one."

SEES NO CUTS

"If atomic warfare cannot be limited, then any country which wishes to survive should use the largest weapon possible at the beginning of the war," he added.

Healey pooh-poohed recent reports Britain will cut her NATO forces from 80,000 to 50,000 men. He said he thought Germany should take on a bigger share of the NATO responsibility.

He pointed out there now are four British divisions in Germany and suggested Germany might pay their expenses if they are to stay.

Kiesinger said Germany was pushing ahead with plans for 12 German NATO divisions. He said if NATO has sufficient strength in traditional weapons, an atomic conflict might be avoided in any aggression of a local nature.

Both Kiesinger and Healey were among the 91 American and foreign officials who spent three days at St. Simons Island. The meeting, fifth in a series, is held in secrecy "to encourage frank discussion" among those present. Speaking on plans for German reunification, Kiesinger said he could see no hope at present. A proposal that West Germany drop out of NATO in return for withdrawal of Russian troops from East Germany would be "tempting," he said. He added it is "unlikely" the Russians will make this offer.

Kiesinger denounced any other plans for a "neutralized" Germany or a "neutralized" Europe. "Europe cannot stand alone," he said.

If Europe can stand strong and steady, he said, increasing unrest in the satellite countries will pave the way eventually for German unification.

The German statesman will address the Georgia Legislature at 10:45 a.m. Tuesday.

Homecoming

Back in 1931, Robert B. Church, Jr., his stunning Nordic-blond wife, Lillian, and their two children, moved to Atlanta from Boston. Alarmed to discover that, unlike Massachusetts with its rigid traffic laws, Georgia required no drivers' licenses, the head of the Church family solemnly warned his wife: "Don't ever dare drive any farther downtown than Davison's!" Lillian took him at his word. She not only drove to Davison's but "moved in" and remained for some 12 years as Atlanta's most popular and beloved Book Reviewer. Who can forget the inspiring review through which threaded her own philosophy and profound faith; or the Christmas programs of Sholem Asch's "The Nazarene"? And now Davison's happily proclaims Wednesday (tomorrow) as Homecoming Day for Lillian. She will star at 3:30 p.m. in our 6th floor Terrace Restaurant at a Book Review Tea, sponsored by the Atlanta Symphony Guild. The book is Colin Wilson's controversial "The Outsider," a portrait of a sort of invisible man, heaven-bent on finding a transcending meaning and purpose for human existence. You, too, need come no farther than Davison's for a transcending experience—not to mention a joyous reunion with our dear friend and yours—Lillian Church. Explosive Mideast Faces New Turmoil President Eisenhower will cut short his Georgia vacation today to return to Washington to grapple with the renewed Middle East crisis. The gravity of the situation, of course, is proved by the President's concern.

The administration and Secretary Dulles have been putting intense pressure on both Israel and President Nasser of Egypt to end the dangerous deadlock over withdrawal of Israeli troops from the Gaza strip and the Gulf of Aqaba.

In a determined attempt to end the stalemate, the United States has offered assurance to Israel that this country will keep the Gulf of Aqaba open to international shipping and use all its influence to keep U.N. forces posted along the Israeli-Egyptian border.

Apparently the efforts have failed. The Israeli government has rejected the offer and insists upon keeping troops where they are until more definite guarantees of protection against Egypt are given.

The Israelis point out that despite Egypt's explanation that Cairo has no intention of interfering with peaceful shipping in the gulf, there stands Cairo's insistence that it is still at war with Israel. They also say that this very fact makes it imperative that Israel protect itself against raids across the Gaza strip.

So again the United States is on the spot. The problem is aggravated by the fact that the United Nations has demanded that the Israelis withdraw and threatens to impose sanctions.

What must be done, of course, is to persuade the Israelis to withdraw with proper U.N. guarantees. Egypt in turn must end its claim of belligerent rights, guarantee free passage to all ships in the Gulf of Aqaba and agree to U.N. administration of the Gaza strip.

In the background, however, are the Russians. It is in Moscow's interest to keep the region in a state of crisis and to pose as a friend of the Arabs. They want no stability and this means a continued threat to Suez and to the vital oil interests in the area.

Meanwhile, the President and Secretary Dulles have to struggle with the problem. The country can hope that what Mr. Truman and other Democrats have been saying—that the administration's Middle East plan is too little and too late—is wrong. But certainly there is no reason for optimism at this stage.

Dulles Surely Needed Some Aid From Truman

It is unfortunate in the extreme that former President Harry S. Truman could not accept the invitation tendered him by the governments of Greece and Turkey to attend the 10th anniversary celebration of the Truman doctrine.

It was that dramatic bit of planning which saved those two countries from communism and they are right to celebrate it and the foreign policy which did, in fact, defeat Russian-inspired strategy to take them over at a time when their own strength had vanished in the great war.

It is reported with some reliability that Secretary Dulles sent a perfunctory letter to Mr. Truman, following a telephone call advising him of the invitation which had been sent through the government.

If this be true, it is either an example of pettiness or thoughtlessness. Now is a time when this country needs all the unity it can muster. Truman had been generous enough to affirm the administration's Middle Eastern policy, though regretting its tardy appearance. It would have been a diplomatic triumph to have him go in an official capacity, representing this country. Both countries are on the perimeter of the Middle East and are important forces in the present problem. Both are members of NATO.

We regret a determined administration effort was not made to have Truman present.

Ability Should Be Basis For Teacher Pay Hikes

Some teachers can teach Johnny to read, write, add and subtract so efficiently that he is well prepared for his next step up the educational ladder.

Other teachers have a difficult time getting their students to comprehend the same subject matter.

It is obvious that the first group of teachers are doing better jobs and therefore are more valuable than the others.

The Senate Education Committee has adopted a resolution urging the State Board of Education to study the possibility of giving teacher raises on the basis of ability rather than across-the-board. The proposal is a sound one.

Education, as the state's largest investment, should be conducted on businesslike lines. Big business long has recognized the fact that an exceptional employee must be paid more than an average employee. The same is true for teachers.

Saddlebag Justice Is Leftover of Buggy Age

No one likes a speed trap. No one condones one, except possibly the arresting officer and court official who profit personally under a fee and split-fee system.

We were in sympathy with the purpose of a bill approved by the Georgia House State of the Republic Committee which would afford better control in those areas where law enforcers actually set out to milk the traveling public. It was defeated yesterday.

The speed trap situation is a difficult one to handle.

One must sift the many complaints about unfairness.

Some of them are cases of obvious injustice.

Some of the gripes come from motorists actually at fault who react to arrest as does a schoolboy caught putting a tack on the teacher's chair.

The long-range solution to the problem of highway justice is to be found in a reorganization of our court system.

Traffic law administration and adjudication demand a system of uniform courts in which cases can be handled with dignity and dispatch.

"Saddlebag" justice is a leftover from the horse and buggy age. The courts must keep pace with the times.

While we wait for them to catch up, we should do everything possible to discourage the true "speed trap" which gives the visitor to Georgia a rough time and our state a bad reputation.

It is good to see that nine communities "red-listed" by the American Automobile Assn. are back in the good graces of the AAA by virtue of having pledged fair enforcement. Others should follow suit.

The Poet, Tennyson, Foresaw the Air Age

A century ago Alfred Lord Tennyson wrote prophetically in "Locksley Hall," like this:

"For I dipt into the future, far as human eye could see,
Saw the vision of the world, and all the wonder that would be;
Saw the heaven filled with commerce,
Argosies of magic sails,
Pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales.

More recently, the Civil Aeronautics Authority has predicted that by 1970 the skies will be filled with three times the passenger traffic of 1956. Last year 42 million persons rode the airlines of America.

Furthermore, say the CAA, as air freight rates go down with the use of more efficient planes, the volume of air cargo will go from 380 million ton-miles in 1956 to 1,600,000,000 in 1970.

All that sounds good to Georgia.

Already we are a great interchange for passenger traffic. Already Atlanta handles much air freight.

Furthermore, we manufacture in Georgia one of those efficient new flying freight cars which will boost air cargo into billions of ton miles.

You were so right, Mr. Tennyson. The heavens will be filled with commerce.

As for you, Mr. Modern Man, if you plan a trip by air for 1980, better make your reservation by 1963 and pay for the ticket by 1970.

Gromyko's Appointment Is Warning to West

While it's next to impossible to keep up with the changes constantly going on in the top hierarchy of the Soviet Union, the appointment of Moscow's top "nyet" man, Andrei Gromyko, as the new foreign minister gives no cause for comfort.

Gromyko is well-remembered as the top lieutenant of Molotov's tough anti-Western policies. His appointment probably means that the Stalinists are winning out in their battle to return to the old line of hate and bailing of the West.

Whatever else it means, it most certainly gives the West and the NATO countries no reason to relax their defenses. Pressures are now building up to weaken these and to rely more and more on atomic weapons, a trend which might make anything other than a nuclear war impossible.

Gromyko is a man the West knows well. It should evaluate its policies toward the Soviet Union accordingly.

Atlantan Mentions 'Shocking' Divorce Rate In Plea To Curb Child Bride Ceremonies

Atlanta—I have read the article by Miss Celestine Sibley, "Child Bride Bill Laughed to Death." When I finished reading the article I did not laugh once.

I have long wondered what is the answer to our mounting and shocking divorce rate. I see someone shares my thoughts. I refer to Rep. Campbell, who feels that a girl should be 17 instead of 14 years of age to get married.

Marriage to me means living, working and sharing the joys and sorrows of life with someone. A girl of 14 has just begun to acquire these qualities. And when she enters marriage lacking these qualities, then the children of such a marriage suffer.

I feel that not only should we raise the legal age for marriage for girls, but should also raise it for boys. And just as important, we should educate our children concerning the meaning of marriage.

If we make our marriage laws harder, then maybe we would not have so many husbands and wives working so hard to get out of their unhappy marriages. MRS. BERNICE LEPSIUS.

Negro Leaders Told To Disregard Agitators

Atlanta—I believe H. Seaborn Wright missed the point in your editorial reminding New York City's snubbing of King. I am sure you did not mean to imply that New York's people were cool to Sauer because of his color.

When the Negro leaders of the South put their foot down and stop listening to outside agitators and

Ike Shows Stamina At Georgia Retreat

THOMASVILLE—For a 66-year-old man who has had a heart attack, President Eisenhower has shown remarkable agility and physical stamina on his South Georgia vacation. His skill with a golf club or a gun would put many younger men to shame in competition.

Eisenhower has been known as a fine marksman and he has proved it in his forays into the woods and fields here in search of wild turkey and quail.

On two occasions in one afternoon, the President brought down three birds on a covey rise with a .410 gauge double-barreled shotgun. That is considered fine shooting here in an area that abounds with good marksmen.

Shooting with his host, Treasury Secretary Humphrey, Ambassador John Hay (Jack) Whitney and others, Ike bagged more than his share of quail. And on one turkey hunt he brought down a 22-pound gobbler that had long eluded local hunters.

One day Eisenhower played 18 holes of golf, walking half way around the hilly 6,544-yard Glen Arven Country Club course, and then hunted for three and a half hours in the afternoon.

He has belted long balls off the tee and on occasions outdistanced club professional John Walter with drives of better than 200 yards.

The weather has been perfect for the Eisenhower trip and he obviously has been enjoying the relaxation and the exercise he considers so essential to maintaining the physical fitness demanded by the strenuous office he holds.

There are times, in unguarded moments when he is not smiling, that the years and burdens of office seem to show upon the President's face. Most of the time, however, he looks physically fit,

What Is the Truth About 'Price Slashing'?

Atlanta—There is so much being said today about the honesty in advertising, who is to know how honest it is. For instance a beauty parlor advertises a $20 permanent for $10, how do you know you are getting a $20 value?

Also, sales, are they honest? They say the price of the article was so much and is reduced to so much, who is to know?

HOUSEWIFE.

She Suggests Textbook For 'Driving Johnny'

Bethlehem—Some questions concerning the proposed driver education bill should be answered before this added expense is put upon the people of Georgia.

Would every student be required to take the course whether interested in learning to drive or not?

There has been much ado about "why Johnny can't read." Some thoughtful citizens have decided there is far too much emphasis placed on athletics in the schools.

The cartoon by Baldy with the steering wheel dominating the school desk could depict the future of school driver training.

I suggest a thin textbook on law, safety, courtesy and operation of the automobile be added to the curriculum of the schools so that Johnny can learn to read and write as well as learn to drive.

Suburb Is Word Meaning People

Suburbanization means moving out to the country, but not quite. It's just a word until you go spend time in a community like Oak Grove, along La Vista road, west of Tucker in DeKalb County. Until 10 years ago Oak Grove was mostly four families—Akin, Hones, Jones and Davis. Those had been the names since the white man chased the last redskin across the Chattahoochee.

Now the Akin, the Hones and the other old settlers are surrounded by the Corcorans, Miners, Rostans, Godlewskis, Taylors, Maxeys and other suburban dwellers too many to enumerate. You'll find them in solid brick houses on Oak Grove road, Oak Grove circle, Oak Grove court, Oak Grove terrace and neighboring streets.

Paul Slaughter, one of the "old" newcomers to the area, moved out there several years ago to get into the country and away from downtown. Now Paul is back in "town" again, at Oak Grove.

The Oak Grove Methodist Church has grown from a one-room frame building with 75 names more or less on the rolls to a fine new structure and 500 members.

The congregation is made up of people like the Sam Taylors, the Joe Summerfords and the Walter Strohmbergs. Sam was born in Columbia, S.C. He sells insurance. Joe Summerford is a Lily native—that's Dooly County—and a lawyer for the VA. Walter S. is from Savannah. He makes his living with a chemical company—anybody ammonia, etc.

They told me at Oak Grove the average in the northwest DeKalb area is eight new families every 12 days.

Oak Grove, Ousley Chapel, Red Oak—all around the town, the old churches, the church graveyards, the landmarks have been surrounded, engulfed.

The sum of it all is what we call Greater Atlanta.

SOME SHRINKAGE: According to Sid Smith Sr., the Gainesville insurance man and fine citizen, the fellow who had been shipwrecked for years saw a bottle floating a bit offshore. Recognizing it as the first sign of civilization he had seen in a long time, he swam out to it, thinking it might at least contain a message.

The bottle was one of those new family-sized soft drink containers. When the castaway reached it, he collapsed in shock.

"Good gracious," he said, or something like that. "I've shrunk!"

Faith Is Important In Feats of Healing

As you read the Gospels you never find an instance where Jesus healed without finding the element of faith somewhere in the story. When the paralytic was brought by his friends and let down through the roof into the presence of Jesus, it was faith. Blind Bartimaeus was sitting by the roadside. He cried out to Christ and his call was returned.

Jesus asked, "What wilt thou that I should do unto thee?" He replied, "Lord, that I might receive my sight." There he is—expressing belief not only in the power of Christ to heal but also in Christ's willingness to heal him. He was healed. In explanation Jesus said, "Thy faith hath made thee whole." (Mark 10:48-52).

There was the centurion whose servant was sick. Hearing that Jesus was in the vicinity, he sent word to Jesus asking that the Lord speak the word that would heal his servant. He believed that Christ did not need even to come to his house. The servant was healed. Jesus says, "I have not found so great faith."

There was the cripple at the pool of Bethesda. For 38 years he had been there. He made all manner of excuses about himself. Jesus merely asked one question—"Wilt thou be made whole?" That is, do you really want to be well? Is your mind concerned with the picture of health? His healing was dependent on his own faith (John 5:14).

One of the tenderest expressions of faith is seen in the story of the woman who touched the hem of His garment. For 12 years she had been sick. But she wanted so much to be well. Instead of resigning herself to her sickness, all those years she had done all she could to get well.

She had heard stories of the Man of Galilee who could heal. Not only did she hear, she also believed. She said, "If I may touch but His clothes, I shall be whole." She did touch the hem of His garment. She was made well. What did Jesus say to her? "Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole" (Mark 5:25-34).

In our conflict between science and superstition, which was wrongly interpreted as a conflict between science and religion, we came to a day when science raised its flag of victory. But now we are not sure. Perhaps there is no power in wearing a string of amber-colored beads to ward off certain diseases, yet science is coming to realize there was tremendous power in the faith of the person wearing those beads.

Now our men of medicine are saying, "Without faith, healing is impossible." Witness such books as "The Will to Live" in which a great doctor says the attitude of a person's mind is more important than all his surgical skills and medicines.

Objections to Hiring Of Aged Not Valid

WASHINGTON—Question: "In a recent column you stated that the reluctance of industry to employ workers over 44 was largely based on outdated, disproved and mythical objections. Please explain." Answer—First, let me indicate why this is a very important matter. At the end of the next eight years we will have an employable civilian labor force of 74 million workers.

Because the birth rate in the United States took a sustained dip during the depression years of the 1930s, the percentage of younger workers in the total labor force is now decreasing and the percentage of older workers, 45 to 64 years of age, is substantially increasing.

This means that if we are to achieve a healthy, expanding economy, a high level of employment and a gross national product of 560 billion dollars, which the economists say is a reasonable target, then it is absolutely imperative that we not waste the skills and talents and productivity of the largest single segment of the nation's workers.

The key facts are these: That more older workers must be employed if we are not to experience a slump in the rate of growth and productivity of our economy.

That as the percentage of older workers is increasing, their employment is decreasing.

Is there any valid reason why industry should instinctively turn from employing older workers? The answer is to be found in a study by the U.S. Department of Labor which provides the first unbiased, comprehensive research into the skills, education, capabilities, performance, stability, adaptability and health of workers 45 years and over. Here are the principal findings:

Myth—That hiring older workers unduly increases pension costs.

Fact—The misconception actually cuts down the employment of older workers. It is not true that the employment of older workers unduly increases the costs of most private pension plans. These pension plans are mostly based on a percentage of average earnings multiplied by the number of years of service. Under this system a man hired when young automatically qualifies for a bigger pension because of longer service.

Myth—That older workers are unskilled.

Fact—The opposite is the truth. Of the workers sampled in seven different cities, twice as many older job seekers as younger job seekers had held skilled jobs.

Myth—That older workers are not flexible, won't accept change.

Fact—This is theory, not experience. Research shows that one in four job applicants changed jobs in order to get work.

Myth—That older workers are less productive than younger workers.

Fact—In eight clothing and shoe plants studied by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, average output per man-hour of piece-rate workers remained stable through age 54. Output of workers 55 to 64 was at least 90 percent as high as that of any younger group.

Russell, Dulles Differ On Aid Philosophy

WASHINGTON—Interesting was the upping of Democrats against a cherished and major Eisenhower foreign policy project—the Middle East resolution—in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Armed Services Committee last week. Not only did Democrats vote solidly to alter the Eisenhower-Dulles language in the resolution, but eight of 15 voted against the whole resolution when it was reported to the Senate for debate.

This was certainly the most formidable Democratic dissent on a major foreign policy issue during the administration of President Eisenhower who up to now has relied heavily upon Democrats on vital foreign policy measures.

Almost as interesting was something else that happened earlier during questioning of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

This was a colloquy between the secretary and the veteran Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, who voted against the Middle East resolution in committee. He has been voicing increasing skepticism about expenditures for foreign military and economic aid.

In this exchange, now made public, the Georgian expressed almost complete loss of faith in the foreign aid programs.

The Georgian senator's words sounded almost like an echo—though in more polite and strained language—of some of the oratory damning foreign spending by his new Senate colleagues from Georgia, Herman Talmadge, during the latter's successful campaign for the Senate last fall.

The Russell attitude certainly is far different from that of his former colleague, Sen. Walter F. George of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the last Congress. Sen. George, you recall, withdrew from a contest for re-election because of the inherent threat of defeat embodied in the younger Talmadge.

Sen. Talmadge is indeed a powerful figure in Georgia politics of whom it is necessary for Sen. Russell to take account.

In his exchange with the secretary, the Georgian said that when we approved NATO and other pacts we thought—or so we were told—that we were "going to have a great system where we would have vast military strength."

"But it means," he went on, "instead of turning out to where we can decrease these expenditures, that everything we do tends to increase them, to where people of foreign countries feel that they have a vested interest in the Treasury of the United States, indeed, in the income of the American taxpayer, that grows rather than reduces. I have almost reached the conclusion that the whole thing is hopeless."

Sen. Russell wound up this discussion by saying, "I am frank to say, at one time I was almost convinced his (George Washington's) advice was outmoded by changing conditions. I have now changed my mind and come to the conclusion we made a terrible mistake in not taking it literally."

No hard-bitten isolationists of 29 years ago could have put it stronger.

Share in America's progress... through shares in American business.

What kind of looks has your wife been giving you lately?

The look to watch for comes out of the corner of the eye. Sometimes the lid drops slightly.

Let it be a warning to you as plain as a peal of thunder: there's a storm brewing about money. Maybe she's concluded you're good at making it but just not very smart about handling it. Stop her in her tracks by addressing her something like this: Darling (you say gently), I suggest that you and I, together, look into the matter of increasing our family income by investing a little money at regular intervals in common stock or bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange. And no interruptions, please, until you have made this fascinating journey with me in five steps...

First step: Two out of three shareowners have incomes under $7500 a year. If we own stock we'll have a chance of getting dividends to increase our income and of getting income from other sources than my job. And if the company grows the value of our investment may grow, too. Because stock makes us part-owners of the company and if it prospers we may share in its prosperity. Or we can buy bonds that promise to pay interest on our money.

Second step: We'll be intelligent investors. Sometimes a company doesn't pay dividends or doesn't grow. So we won't jump at tips or rumors—we'll get facts before we buy. And we'll use only money left over after the bills and family emergencies are provided for.

Third step: We'll introduce ourselves to a fellow who knows a lot more about investing than we do—a broker in a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange. We'll ask him to help us plan a really sensible investment program. We'll find out whether bonds are better for us than stocks. Everybody who's going to invest should ask the help of a good broker. That's what he's there for... to help us buy or sell securities wisely.

Fourth step: Together we'll read a wonderful booklet called "DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS." It's got sixteen pages packed with information about more than 300 stocks on the Exchange that have paid dividends every year from 25 to 108 years. It tells which ones are preferred by financial institutions, which pay 5 to 6 percent dividends at recent prices, and other interesting facts.

Fifth step: And finally, in that booklet we'll read about the marvelously convenient Monthly Investment Plan that can help us invest regularly in some of America's greatest corporations. In any one Plan we can invest as little as $40 every three months—up to $1000 a month.

And now darling (you conclude winningly), will you take this journey with me into the fascinating world of investments? If you will, we can own our share of American business.

If you deliver the above speech with proper inflections, your wife will break into a broad and loving smile. But don't let her beat you to the coupon. That's your prerogative. Tear it out now and send it at the first opportunity.

200 Exotic Ice Creams Fail To Budge 'Big 3' Flavors

The long-entrenched "big three" of the ice cream industry—chocolate, vanilla and strawberry—are holding their own against all comers, including spinach ice cream, asparagus ice cream, tomato sherbet and about 195 other flavors.

This information came Monday at Athens from Vincent M. Rabuffo of New York, editor and general manager of The Ice Cream Trade Journal, oldest trade journal in the ice cream field.

Chocolate, vanilla and strawberry, he reports, still account for nearly 75 per cent of all ice cream sales, with vanilla accounting for 50 per cent by itself. And this comes in the face of competition from 195 to 200 flavors which tempt the palates of Americans every year, he declared. "And as I can see," said Rabuffo, "it's going to keep right on being this way."

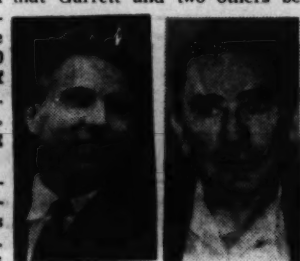

Rabuffo spoke Monday to a conference of ice cream manufacturers at the University of Georgia's new continuing education center. His speech topic, however, was something less frivolous than flavoring. It was ice cream economics.

Last year's ice cream sales amounted to 850 million gallons—

School Chiefs Still Vie

enjoined from interference with his duties as school superintendent. Garrett, C. L. Young and C. D. Corn Jr., the others named in the injunction, filed a demurrer Monday, saying that Nicholson did not have just cause for saying that they interfered with the office. Nicholson's attorney then asked Judge Frankum for time to amend his original plea, which was granted. The time for further hearing has not been set. A statewide conference for county Farm Bureau presidents will be held March 3-5 at Rock Eagle 4-H Club Center.

Columbus Pair Freed

Columbus police Monday released two Negroes arrested in connection with the shooting of department store owner Luico Flowers and said "nothing definite was gained" from questioning the pair. The Negroes, R. C. Edmunds, a ticket taker at the Dixie theater, in front of which Flowers was shot, and Albert Carter, theater janitor, were picked up during the weekend for interrogation.

Dockers Stall Work Return Despite Pact

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.) NEW YORK, Feb. 18—A full resumption of longshore work along the East Coast before the end of the week appeared unlikely today.

Despite the agreement Sunday between the International Longshoremen's Assn. and New York waterfront employers on a new contract, disagreements between union locals and employers in Baltimore, Philadelphia and Norfolk kept the men off piers from Maine to Virginia today.

These same disagreements, plus purely local issues in New York, could keep the dockers off the job tomorrow and perhaps longer.

The day was marked by confusion and what appeared to be a total breakdown in communications between one union official and another, and between the union and the New York employers.

'Baby Doll' and Ingrid's 'Anastasia' Lead Contest for Best-Actress Oscar

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 18 (U.S.)—Ingrid Bergman and "Baby Doll" scored high in the 29th annual Academy Award nominations tonight.

Miss Bergman, who gave up a Hollywood career for Italian director Roberto Rossellini, was nominated as best actress for her role as the lost Russian princess in "Anastasia." She won an Oscar in 1944 for "Gaslight."

Carol Baker, the thumb-sucking child bride of "Baby Doll," also won a nomination. Others in the best actress category: Katharine Hepburn, "The Rainmaker"; Nancy Kelly, "The Bad Seed"; and Deborah Kerr, "The King and I."

For the second straight year, the late James Dean was nominated for a posthumous award. Chosen for his acting in "Giant," he is competing against Yul Brynner of "The King and I" and Laurence Olivier of "Richard III" in the best actor group.

Nominations for best picture of 1956: "Around the World in 80 Days," "Friendly Persuasion," "Giant," "The King and I," and "The Ten Commandments."

Nominees for best performance by a supporting actor:

Don Murray, "Bus Stop;" Anthony Perkins, "Friendly Persuasion;" Anthony Quinn, "Last of Life;" Mickey Rooney, "The Bold and the Brave;" and Robert Stack, "Written on the Wind."

Best performance by a supporting actress:

Mildred Dunnock, "Baby Doll;" Eileen Heckart, "The Bad Seed;" Mercedes McCambridge, "Giant;" Patty McCormack, "The Bad Seed;" and Dorothy Malone, "Written on the Wind."

Best direction:

Michael Anderson, "Around the World in 80 Days;" William Wyler, "Friendly Persuasion;" George Stevens, "Giant;" Walter Lang, "The King and I," and King Vidor, "War and Peace."

The nominations provided one precedent. Writer Michael Wilson was nominated for his screenplay of "Friendly Persuasion," but under the academy bylaws his nomination was voided because he invoked the Fifth Amendment in reply to questions about Communist affiliations before a congressional committee.

The nominations, which were made by 16,721 members of the film industry, otherwise supplied few surprises. Most of the nominees had been predicted beforehand, with the possible exception of Rock Hudson.

The final awards will be voted by the 1,770 members of the academy and presented before a national television audience

Library Yells Next For Haircut Book

By MARJORIE SMITH

"WHEN YOU FEEL LOW," sighs Peachtree Cynic, "half the people aren't interested in your troubles—and the other half are glad you're finally getting what you deserve."

SPRING FLOWERS are blooming in Larry Keheley's East Point yard—just as everywhere else around Greater Atlanta.

But 12-year-old Larry is way ahead of most gardeners. He also has some praying mantises, those oddly shaped, angular insects that destroy many common garden pests.

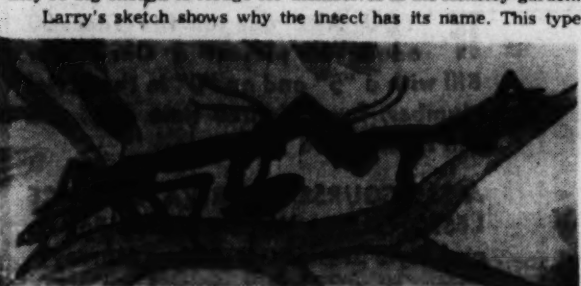

Larry hatched out the mantises in his room several months ahead of the time the insects regularly leave their egg cases out of doors.

Larry's mother, Mrs. W. W. Keheley, of 701 West Forest Ave., a teacher at Russell High, agrees with her son that such an event is "rare."

Larry and his brother, Jack, 15, are both interested in science and nature. Larry is a walking encyclopedia on the habits of insects, and he drew this picture of full-grown mantises engaged in a duel. (That's how the baby mantises—now so small they're scarcely visible in that fruit jar Larry is holding here—will look when they're grown.) Right now Larry and Jack are feeding their pets hamburger meat and egg yolks until they're big enough to forage for themselves in the Keheley garden.

Larry, Mantises

Larry's sketch shows why the insect has its name. This type mantis holds its front legs in a manner suggesting hands folded in prayer.

JUST ABOUT THE TIME men's haircuts went up to a buck and a half here, the Atlanta Library got in a new shipment of books including one entitled "The Home Barber" complete with how-to-do-it photos and a list of tools "for achieving a neat, clean, good-looking haircut that will not look homemade." There's already a waiting list.

Keep Ideals, Johnson Says At Morehouse

Students, graduates and friends of Morehouse College were urged to "hold fast to the principles" of the college founders by Dr. Mordecai Johnson, Howard University president, who delivered the 90th Founders' Day message Monday.

Addressing a chapel audience on the Morehouse campus, Dr. Johnson said Morehouse founders established a landmark of "character-building, educational ethics and religious principles."

IN LIBERAL ARTS

Dr. Johnson, graduate of Morehouse, said the "hearts of men" should remain the center of liberal arts education.

"Without educating the heart," he said, "the whole educational structure is likely to become corrupted. Adulterated education is a dangerous instrument in the wrong hands."

Dr. Johnson said the greatest strength of the small liberal arts college lies in productivity of its graduates. He said their religious, educational and political activities should wield influence in the community.

GROUND-BREAKING

Ground-breaking ceremonies were held Monday afternoon for the $300,000 physical education building at the college. It was announced by President Benjamin E. May, that about $72,000 was raised for the building by graduates.

Dr. John W. Davis, former president of West Virginia State College, delivered the annual banquet address. He said education and democratic government are interrelated "to promote the highest ideals and interests of government for all the people."

NO LEGISLATION NEEDED

Effort To Add 4 to Staff Of Solicitor Bell Ended

DeKalb County legislators agreed Monday to take no further action on a bill to give four employees to Stone Mountain Circuit Sol. Gen. Richard Bell.

Seventeen Atlanta-area bills, meanwhile, won approval of the Legislature, five in the Senate and 12 in the House. Four new bills were put into Senate and House hoppers.

Rep. James A. Mackay said the DeKalb delegation agreed to take no more action on the solicitor's bill because County Commission chairman Claude Blount assured them the necessary employees could be supplied without legislation.

The legislator also said the delegation was told Bell had not taken the matter up with Blount before requesting the legislation.

On another DeKalb bill, the delegation decided not to make any changes in salaries of a number of Civil Court officials in a measure which also reduces court costs.

The delegation will ask the bar association to make a further study of the salaries and make recommendations about them to the legislators.

SUBSTITUTE BILL

The substitute bill introduced in place of the original Civil Court measure allows charges of five per cent on matters involving up to $1,000 and three per cent additional on amounts above $1,000.

Costs are now 8 1/2 per cent on matters involving $100 and 6 1/2 per cent more on items above $100.

The substitute also allows the court to pay for required legal advertising, let Civil Court officials withdraw from the county pension plan and provide for service of jury summons by mail.

SALARY PORTIONS

At the same time, the DeKalb delegation is trying to work out a settlement with Rockdale and Newton county legislators on how much of the solicitor general's salary each county should bear. This grows out of the withdrawal of Clayton County from the Stone Mountain circuit.

The legislators also are still going over a list of some 20 names submitted by the DeKalb Grand Jury for appointment to a new nine-man county bond commission. The bill creating the body has been passed by the House and sent to the Senate with the members' names not included.

New bills filed included measures sponsored in the Senate by Sen. Charlie Brown to let former Fulton Commissioner I. Glen Halley get pension credit for 20 years' county service and to put Atlanta's Municipal Traffic court employees under social security.

LONGER REGISTRATION

The Clayton delegation introduced a bill to provide longer voter registration periods in Jonesboro.

Fulton Rep. M. M. (Mugsy) Smith filed a bill to authorize the county to issue special use zoning permits. He said the bill was "signed by me."

Fulton's other two House members did not sign a similar bill put in by Smith for Atlanta because they wanted to see what happened to a general bill doing the same thing. That bill won House approval Thursday.

In other developments, Fulton Rep. Ralph McClelland revised his government economy resolution to make it clear that it only investigates taxing and spending of Atlanta and Fulton County. Some observers thought the original also referred to DeKalb County.

INSTALLMENT TAXES

Rep. Smith said he is "not going along" with Brown's bill to again allow installment payments of city and county taxes. Smith, who helped pass the bill doing away with installments, said he felt the tax payment method "is all right like it is."

Smith also revealed the delegation is revising some increases that would be provided under city and county pension bills already introduced. The changes were worked out with City Comptroller Earl Landers and County Comptroller John Still.

The changes include doing away with a planned $10-a-month payment for every year's service over 25 years and making it two per cent of the last year's salary and cutting the amount of additional pay to be given to persons over 70 already retired with more than 25 years' service.

In the latter category, $4 per month will be paid workers who made $300 a month while $6 monthly will be paid to those who made over $300 a month. None of the pay or pension bills have been approved by Fulton commissioners.

Local bills passed in the Senate Monday were House measures. They are now ready to be signed by the governor. They set up a Marietta pension system for firemen and policemen. The Cobb County commission power to deal with a new parking authority, prohibit posting of advertising on DeKalb streets and amend Pine Lake's charter. House measures include bills to amend Fulton's juvenile judge, Criminal Court judges' salaries and assistant solicitor, solicitor general and assistant, ordinary and tax assessors, and city court judges and golf professionals; set up a Mountain View re-order's court, move a place of property from Atlanta to East Point limits and provide Fulton pension benefits.

Bill To Curb Speed Traps Dies in House

The "anti-speed trap bill," introduced by Rep. William R. Killian of Glynn to enable the governor to remove sheriffs in speed-trap counties, was killed in the House by a vote of 82 to 76.

Rep. Killian told the House the measure was aimed at sheriffs who "systematically and continuously" make cases where there is no violation. He said it would empower the governor to hold a public hearing and to remove the officers in such counties.

Rep. Joe Underwood of Montgomery County who said his county "has been the worst speed trap in Georgia" opposed the bill because he said it would make a martyr out of the offending sheriff and enable him to "go home and run again and build up a powerful machine."

Rep. Jack Warren said passage of the bill might encourage flagrant law violations. Rep. Killian said he would ask reconsideration of the measure Tuesday.

AAA Assails Speed Traps In Georgia

Michael Frome, travel editor of American Automobile Assn., Monday said the AAA receives more complaints from Georgia traffic cases than from "all the rest of the country put together."

Frome charged that Georgia's worst "speed traps" are cases in which motorists are arrested on trivial violations or in which there have been no violations.

He said he realizes many complaints from touring motorists are unjustified and that most complaints cannot be investigated adequately.

However, he said, that because of the "great volume of complaints," there is no doubt that Georgia has some speed traps.

Frome was in Atlanta to present Gov. Marvin Griffin a copy of the March issue of Holiday Magazine, which contains an article Frome wrote on a four-day motor tour through Georgia. He circles the state south of Atlanta on a $100 budget.

House Kills Bill On Landscape Architects, 81-34

The Georgia House Monday turned down a proposal to create a board governing landscape architects. Similar bills have been defeated several times in previous sessions.

Rep. Robert Scoggin of Floyd, who spoke for the proposal, described it as a "watered-down" version of the earlier bills.

Rep. Robert L. Russell of Barrow, however, said the bill would force even an honor graduate of the University of Georgia to serve two years as an "apprentice" before he could practice the profession. "I'm tired of seeing various organizations building fences around their businesses," he said.

The bill was defeated, 81-34.

Sparta Senator, Speaker Clash on Local Legislation

Pound Says Moate Threatened Program as Retaliatory Move

By BRUCE GALTHER

Sen. Marvin G. Pound of Sparta Monday accused House Speaker Marvin Moate of "threatening" to kill local legislation because Pound opposed one of Moate's bills.

Moate retorted that "I don't do business that way. I just changed my mind about those bills."

Pound's remarks came as the senator rose to a point of personal privilege.

The Senate had just voted to table a bill proposed by Moate which would have created an additional judgeship in the Ocmulgee Circuit.

The motion to table was made by Senate Floor Leader Peyton Hawes of Elberton.

Pound thanked the Senate for its action.

Then he added: "I don't like to be threatened. . . They don't get too big to scare me."

The senator, who is also mayor of Sparta, explained that Moate had originally approved two of Pound's bills affecting the city of Sparta. Moate is also from Sparta.

His consent is necessary on local legislation.

AGREED TO GO AHEAD

The House Speaker said later that he never had been enthusiastic about Pound's bills but had agreed to go along with them. He said, however, that "strong local opposition" to the measures had developed over the weekend.

Pound said he had asked the speaker whether the "local opposition" was from the public or Moate.

One of Pound's proposals would have raised Sparta's ad valorem tax minimum from 10 to 12 1/2 mills. The other deals with the city's power of condemnation.

Pound said Moate had never consulted him about the judgeship bill. The senator said he opposed the proposal "conscientiously" because he said the present judge works only 35 weeks a year.

CITES OPPOSITION

The Sparta mayor added that three out of the four senators whose districts would be affected by the judgeship bill were opposed to it.

In other action the Senate voted 41-1 in favor of a bill setting a $1,000-a-year minimum salary for school bus drivers. The bill would not go into effect until money is available.

The Senate postponed action for a day on a controversial bill which proposes a toll road from Brunswick to the Florida line.

A resolution proposing a study committee to consider the advisability of requiring insurance companies to invest certain portions of their capital in Georgia was approved by the upper chamber.

embarrass somebody, but not me," he declared.

Crawford said he had talked to the Chatham representatives about the bill and was going to try to get the committee to report it out for Senate action.

Sen. Wilton Hill of Reidsville, committee chairman, said he thought the bill had been "tabled indefinitely," but that he was not opposed to reconsideration of the measure.

Hill said he was not personally opposed to the bill, but that there was some feeling that it would "take a little jurisdiction away from judges in misdemeanor cases."

Sen. Marcus Mashburn of Cumming, committee member, said he voted to table the bill but is not opposed to it. "I haven't read it," he said.

Mashburn said, "some member of the committee thought it was punitive legislation from standpoint—I don't remember the details."

Cheatham declared that the bill was not intended to "embarrass" anyone but lottery operators and that it is punitive only from the standpoint of providing that second offenders in lottery cases must serve a sentence.

Volunteer teams of physicians will administer Salk vaccine to the public free of charge. The purpose is to dramatize the campaign to inoculate all persons under 40 before the coming polio season.

Access Roads Called Key to Highway Program

Public acceptance of the limited access type of highway is the biggest controlling factor in how soon the federal-aided super-highway program will get under way in Georgia, Atlanta Rotarians were told Monday.

The speaker was Roger H. Lawson, chairman of the State Highway Department.

"Even if all the engineering problems were finished, the contractors and equipment lined up and the material ready for the highways, a selling job to the general public must be done," Lawson said.

"Experience in other places shows that everyone benefits from the limited access type of road. However, there is always local opposition because Georgians and people of other states, too, have an inherent concept that access to a road adjoining their property is an inalienable right."

Lawson said federal law insists on the roads being the limited access type.

"If this were not so, and businesses built up along the roads, the very traffic that the businesses create would destroy the purpose of the road," Lawson said. "We have found that to be so from our bitter experience with roads we thought were adequate 10 years ago."

Lawson said the current fiscal year calls for the spending of 72 million dollars on highways. Last year's appropriation was only 39 million dollars. Fiscal 1957 will call for 83 million dollars and 1958, 110 million dollars.

'Golden Age' in Treatment Of Cancer by Drugs Seen

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

Research on the use of chemical agents against cancer shows great promise—and the "golden age" of treating cancer patients with drugs may begin in the next 20 years, a New York doctor said here Monday.

Dr. Joseph H. Burchenal, professor of medicine at Cornell medical school and member of the Sloan-Kettering Institute, said facilities for studying effects of chemical agents on cancer have "increased tremendously" in the past two years.

Dr. Burchenal, who spoke at the Atlanta Graduate Medical Assembly at the Biltmore Hotel, said many people believe it "will be possible to control cancer indefinitely with drugs."

"We have agents now that slow down the growth of cancer cells," he said, "but we don't have agents that destroy the cancer cells without damaging normal tissue."

POINTS TO "STOPGAPS"

He said present drugs used in treating cancer patients are "only stopgaps."

"We are looking for better agents," he said, "and we are screening chemical compounds at a rate of 20,000 a year."

Dr. Burchenal said each agent is tested on a mouse tumor to see if it inhibits the growth of the tumor. If the growth of the mouse tumor is stopped by the chemical compound, the chemical agent is tested further, he explained.

He said various nitrogen mustards and actinomycin, an antibiotic, have proved of value in prolonging the lives of cancer patients.

He said a large scale study of the value of using nitrogen mustards after cancer surgery has been started. He said it is hoped the nitrogen mustard will "kill any cancer cells dislodged at the time of surgery" and thus save many lives.

Dr. Eugene A. Stead, chairman of the department of medicine at Duke University and former dean of Emory medical school, stressed the importance of heredity in human illness. He said "genetic defects" may cause particular parts of the body to wear out.

Dr. Stead recommends a low-fat diet not only for patients with known heart disease but for others who might develop heart disease. Of a group of people 50 years old, half of them will die of diseases of the heart and blood vessels, he pointed out.

Speaking at a question-and-answer session, Dr. Stead said he does not believe diet is the primary factor in heart disease. But he believes there is enough evidence

Savage, after outlining the agreement, warned the mayor, "Don't ask me if it's legal. It's the best we could do." He added the agreement will have to be ratified by the Atlanta Board of Aldermen.

Clayton Delegates Withdraw Measures To Tax Airport

the bill and resolution would still be "hanging over our heads."

When Fulton Rep. Ralph McClelland—who had acted as agent between city officials and Clayton legislators in negotiations—reported the offer had been rejected, Fulton Rep. M. M. (Muggay) Smith stepped in. He persuaded the Clayton legislators to also include withdrawal of the two measures.

Then Smith, McClelland, Hartsfield, City Atty. Jack Savage and Clayton Reps. Edgar Blalock and William J. (Bill) Lee met in the office of Administration Floor Leader Colbert Hawkins.

Smith told the mayor the Clayton legislators had no intention of posing "threats" in the bills to force a settlement and would withdraw them.

Then Blalock advised the mayor there was "nothing personal" in the legislation. He said Clayton has "a problem" in finding sufficient tax revenue because the airport, Atlanta General Depot, Georgia Baptist Children's Home and the new state farmers market take some 5,000 acres of land off county tax books.

The mayor apologetically told Blalock he had not, in a recent meeting with the Clayton group, intended any insult. "I talked a lot most vigorously," he said.

But he added he felt strongly on the matter of the airport and that citizens expect him to defend it.

Hartsfield said that unless the two measures were withdrawn, the city could not ask citizens to vote on a proposed $10,000,000 airport bond issue because the pending legislation would endanger the bonds.

Blalock said he and Lee were proposing to withdraw them "to show we are conciliatory."

The agreement calls for the city to give payment for the entire year's per capita cost of educating the children who live on airport land for which Clayton Medicine said the malignant melanoma—one of the fastest growing cancers—appears most frequently on the legs and feet.

Dr. Donald A. Covatt, associate professor, Department of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation, New York University College of Medicine, described methods of rehabilitating hemiplegic patients. He will meet with a group of Atlanta leaders Tuesday to discuss the possible establishment of a rehabilitation center here.

Driver Training Proposal Is Knocked Out in House

measure would not have become effective until Griffin made the money available from surplus or contingent funds.

Rep. Jack Ray of Warren said he had heard some estimates of the cost of the program as high as $3,000,000. He said it would be "very, very expensive."

"This rope or line we're supposed to be holding is getting right elastic," Ray commented.

Mackay conceded the program would "cost a lot." But he contended the economic loss due to highway accidents amounts to nearly $100,000,000 a year.

The first of the two hospitalization bills passed by the House would set up a state-federal trust fund to provide aid to the 100,000 aged persons receiving welfare assistance.

State Welfare Director Alan Kemper has estimated the program would cost the state around $2,500,000 a year. The federal government would match state funds dollar-for-dollar.

The other measure would provide state-county matching funds for hospitalization care of needy persons not covered by old-age welfare assistance.

Rep. W. Colbert Hawkins of Screven, administration floor leader, said the measure would help counties who are now caring for indigent patients in Hill-Burton hospitals. He said some counties are having "great difficulty in meeting the operational costs of their hospitals."

Both programs would be financed through contingent funds.

The latest fight over the proposed timberland investigation came on a motion by Rep. Francis Allen of Statesboro that the House reconsider its action of last Friday in refusing to overturn an adverse committee report.

The reconsideration motion lost 91 to 85. The proposal cannot be considered again at this session which ends Friday.

Allen said the land buying by paper corporations is creating "the greatest monopoly this state has ever seen."

In other actions, the House voted pay increases for State Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler and Public Safety Director W. C. Dorn. But a similar pay increase bill for State Health Director T. F. Sellers failed to receive a majority vote.

Wheeler could be paid up to $10,000 and Dorn up to $10,000 under bills approved by the House Monday. Wheeler drew about $8,000.

DAMNED BY WHAT YOU SAY?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique of everyday conversation which can pay you real dividends in both social and business advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, self confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by what they say and how they say it. Whether in business, at social functions, or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can make a good impression every time you talk.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in everyday conversation, the publishers have printed full details of their interesting self-training method in a 24-page booklet, "Adventures in Conversation," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Simply send your request to: Conversation Studies, 835 Diversey Parkway, Dept. 9272, Chicago 14, Ill. A postcard will do.

Left open, however, was the question whether this country actually would vote for sanctions or would abstain. Equally left open was how far economic sanctions might go—whether they would involve only cutting off U.S. aid or would interrupt also private remittances to Israel through the United Jewish Appeal and the Israel bond drive.

On this question there appeared to be division in the state department.

Clarification of the U.S. position was expected at Secretary of State Dulles' news conference tomorrow, and after President Eisenhower has conferred with congressional leaders upon his return to Washington tomorrow.

No Cravey Critic, Rep. Smith Says

Fulton Rep. M. M. (Muggsy) Smith said Monday he had "no intention" of criticizing State Insurance Commissioner Zack Cravey in a statement last week before the House Insurance Committee.

Smith made the statement he referred to in arguing against a bill which would prevent cancellation of health and accident insurance policies after they had been in effect five years.

The Fulton legislator said any statements attributed to him meant the bill was "not needed" because such matters could be handled through the insurance commissioner's office under a bill introduced last year.

The insurance commissioner's office, he added, "is doing a good job. If I had any faults to find with it, I would go down and take it up with them myself. It was not my intention to criticize the department in any way."

Clash on Zoning Courtesy Brings Procedural Survey

Atlanta aldermen Monday ended a heated debate over zoning after Board President Lee Evans announced he will name a special committee to recommend procedures.

The issue was precipitated Feb. 4 when aldermen overrode the aldermanic board's zoning committee and approved business use of a site on Hightower road, NW.

Mayor Hartsfield vetoed the measure at the request of zoning committee members.

When the Hartsfield veto was sounded Monday it was filed without comment, although aldermen Colie B. Whitaker and William T. (Bill) Knight, in whose ward the tract under question lies, had urged approval of business use at the previous aldermanic board session. They said they did not hear the veto sounded.

The fight developed when Ald. Milton Farris, chairman of the zoning committee, filed his routine report on other matters. Ald. Douglas Wood challenged a news report that committee members had asked the veto on the grounds that the measure was approved because of ward courtesy—that is, an appeal for support by representatives of a ward on the ground that the matter affects their constituents most and should be considered on that premise.

Farris said the appeal had been made. Wood then asked what about future similar appeals. Farris said he opposed ward courtesy zoning but if the matter was decided on their merit, that was a different matter. Wood insisted that all other committees would have the same

ARE YOU LOSING YOUR HAIR?

FALLING HAIR itself doesn't cause baldness. It is natural for hair to reach mature length and then fall out. Baldness starts when some local scalp ill keeps a new hair from growing in place of each hair that falls out. Dandruff and scalp-itch are common danger signals indicating the presence of some local growth-choking condition of the hair and scalp. These local scalp troubles which cause so much baldness are not easily overcome. They need specialized treatment—a specific treatment for each particular condition. Combing, brushing, washing, tonics—not enough. You'll save time—money—and hair by consulting a Thomas specialist first. LEAVING GOLF, HUNTING

The President will leave his vacation retreat, Milestone Plantation, at 11 a.m. and take off from Spence Air Force Base at noon Tuesday.

Anticipated arrival time at Washington aboard the Columbine is 3 p.m., Hagerty said. Shortly thereafter the President expects to see Secretary Dulles at the White House.

"This, of course, deals with the Mideastern situation and that is why he is returning," Hagerty said.

However, Hagerty, in answer to a question, said he would not characterize it as an "emergency."

NO PLANS TO GO TO U.N.

Hagerty said Eisenhower has no plans to go to the United Nations in New York, as had been rumored in some quarters.

Asked if the President had made any decision on what stand the United States would take on the question of imposing U.N. sanctions against Israel, Hagerty answered: "I have no comment on that."

The United States has been pressuring Israel to withdraw its forces from Egyptian territory. Sunday Eisenhower issued a strong statement insisting again on Israeli withdrawal.

There was an implied threat in that statement that the United States might support sanctions against Israel if the Jewish state persists in its refusal to pull out of the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba area.

Asked if the President's earlier return to Washington means that the United States will take any "different" course in the U.N., Hagerty said, "My answer would be no; I believe our position has been clear from the start."

Eisenhower wants to be in Washington while the discussions or debate are going on before the United Nations, Hagerty said. Action has been postponed until Thursday.

The President decided Monday afternoon to return to Washington after he had talked twice during the day with Dulles by telephone.

News of the change in vacation plans was announced dramatically at an earlier-than-scheduled news conference when Hagerty summoned reporters from the golf course to the Scott Hotel.

Up until last Friday, Hagerty said, Eisenhower had intended to stay in Thomasville through this Friday, "but since then that has not been the case."

THOMASVILLE, Feb. 18—White House Press Secretary James Hagerty said Monday that he knows of no invitation to Queen Elizabeth for a visit to this country. There have been widespread reports of a goodwill visit, and some sources attribute them to a diplomatic leak.

Meanwhile, sources close to the royal family in London said the queen had received no such invitation.

cipal feature a provision intended to spur new GI home construction in rural and small town areas.

It provides for advance loan commitments to builders upon payment of a non-refundable fee amounting to 2 per cent of the loan. The commitment would be valid for three months and subject to extension if the builder is active and has contracted with eligible veterans.

The purpose of the advance commitment provision is to give builders assurance of government financing and encourage construction.

The Teague bill also provides that the Veterans Administrator may make construction advances to builders during actual construction, thereby eliminating need for construction loans.

The VA administrator may also exempt new construction, at his discretion, from subdivision and land planning requirements now prescribed by law.

Rights Panelists Vote To End Hearing March 5

when the news came that the Hennings panel was about to vote on a limitation of hearings. Ervin didn't stop to shave.

Hennings implied that the subcommittee hearings were nearing a point of filibuster. The vote was taken, with four proponents of civil rights legislation drowning out the two new Southerners on the panel.

Long lists of Southern governors, attorneys general and Southern experts on the Constitution were clamoring to be heard. If all were heard, it was suggested by some proponents of civil rights, the hearings might last the entire current session of Congress, and perhaps longer.

Leaders meanwhile were giving a long-distance look at prospects of perhaps a record filibuster if civil rights legislation reached the Senate floor, and what it could do to the legislative program.

In some high quarters it was estimated that a filibuster, if one set in, might last from four to six weeks. Conceding that such an event would mean a hard setback to other legislation, it was figured that if a filibuster set in not later than May 1 it could be overridden with time left for a clean-up of the general legislative program. There was an outburst on the Senate floor this afternoon. Sen. Johnson of Texas, Democratic floor leader, asked unanimous consent for a meeting of the Hennings subcommittee while the Senate was in session. Recently there have been Southern objections to such meetings.

Fireproof Home for Aged Is Urged at Bond Session

By CHARLES MOORE

Demands for a fireproof home for the aged in Fulton County were sounded Monday at a meeting of the public buildings subcommittee of the Joint Atlanta-Fulton County Bond Commission.

County Commissioner James H. Aldredge called for a new home for the aged in the wake of a flash fire in Warrenton, Mo., Sunday that left 11 dead.

"We have a real fire trap here," said Aldredge as he called new juvenile court center, expressways, airport expansion and a new jail. "But we're forgetting the ones we should be looking after, the old people," he said.

"Hardly a month goes past when you don't pick up your paper and see where an old folks' home has burnt up," he added.

Presented to the bond committee Monday were requests totaling more than $10 million for new county buildings.

The projects, and their amounts, include: city-county health department center, $1.5 million; new juvenile court and detention home, $2.5 million; new jail, $2 million; remodeling courthouse, $2.4 million; new civil court annex, $2 million; and new building to store county and court records, $120,000.

James H. Aldredge Charles C. Mathias

for replacement of the 46-year-old county alms house at North Fulton Park and the 46-year-old independent authority-operated Battle Hill Haven Home.

Bond Committeeman William A. Cetti said, "We ought to fight for that (inclusion of a modern old folks home in the upcoming bond issue). I'm for it one hundred per cent."

"Battle Hill was outdated when they moved in," said Charles C. Mathias, bond committeeman.

Aldredge pointed out so far the bond issue proposals include a

Albanian Chief Gives Tito Tongue Lashing

VIENNA, Feb. 19 (U-P)—Enver Hoxha, dictator of Albania, has launched a massive verbal assault on President Tito of Yugoslavia, radio broadcasts heard here indicated today.

Radio Tirana said Hoxha told a recent session of the Albanian Communist party Central Committee the "Yugoslav leadership" is guilty of "gross interference in Hungarian and Albanian affairs."

He also charged that the Yugoslav press is carrying on a "slandering campaign" against the Albanian Communist party.

(Pete) Latimer, a representative of the Atlanta Bar Assn.

Judge Ralph Pharr said it would be cheaper to remodel the courthouse than to build a new one.

The proposed $2 million annex would house the civil and criminal courts of Fulton County. The three-story annex would be erected above the existing parking garage on the southwest corner of the courthouse block.

Commission Chairman Archie Lindsey said the commissioners had spent a considerable amount of time going over the requests for the county's building program.

"We think these are the best possible plans for the least amount of money and still have substantial buildings," Lindsey said of the $10 million program presented by the bond subcommittee.

Main Line Still a Symbol

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)
PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18—Although sheer wealth and social acceptance never have been synonymous in Philadelphia, they have not necessarily clashed. The du Ponts are more properly associated with Wilmington, where there is no Social Register. In the Philadelphia edition for 1957 they have 46 entries. The less affluent Morriszes, whose forebear, Robert, was a signer of the Declaration of Independence, have 60.

And just as no one family is socially absolute in Philadelphia, neither is any one hostess. Apart from historic beauties like Phoebe Ann Rush, who dominated the mid-19th century, there have been two more recent instances of women whose social favor was sought and disapproval was disastrous.

For a quarter-century, ending with her death in 1929, Mrs. Sarah Drexel Fell Van Rensselaer presided over the superb town house at 1801 Walnut St.

She thus tended to maintain the already fading glory of Rittenhouse Square. This was the heart of Philadelphia society through the 1880s and '90s and, indeed, until the advent of the automobile opened up the suburban Main Line.

After Mrs. Van Rensselaer's death, the home was boarded up for more than a decade. In June, 1942, it was taken over by the Penn Athletic Club. From the entrance one still looks up at the delicate S-shaped balcony rail.

Other famous town houses around Rittenhouse Square have given way to hotels and apartments. The original chandelier of Miss Caroline Sinkler's home on Locust Street still graces its ballroom—now the Quaker Lady Restaurant.

A dominant suburban hostess was Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, wife of the senior partner of Drexel & Co. Through the early 1930s, wearing a gem-studded platinum tiara, she reigned over the 300 acres of Whittemarsh Hall, sometimes called the Versailles of America.

Mrs. Stotesbury kept what amounted to a social register of her own, with about 300 names. Each house guest received a card bearing a questionnaire. It asked not only preference for breakfast, but also whether any particular color scheme was more or less conducive to sleep.

Two years before Mrs. Stotesbury's death in 1946, the Hall and 38 of the acres were sold (for a mere $167,000) to Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Co. Salons and solaria became offices and laboratories; hollow-stemmed glasses gave way to test tubes and retorts. The rest of the property has since been subdivided for residential purposes.

DRAMATIC CHANGE

The change in Whittemarsh Hall is more dramatic than most. Because even by the standards of the heyday of the Main Line and Chestnut Hill—say from 1905 to 1929—the Stotesbury estate, completed in 1920, was something special.

The more general reduction has been from homesites in the scores of acres to those on an acre or less. Metropolitan Philadelphia, with a better educated and more prosperous middle class, is moving out, in a kind of inexorable pursuit of the fox-hunt territory around Radnor. Garnish shopping centers now dot the Main Line. Driving across City Line avenue into Lower Merion Township is less a social advance than an experience in traffic.

MAIN LINE A SYMBOL

The Main Line remains a symbol as well as a location; but in both senses, it is often misunderstood. It actually dates to an old project of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, called the Main Line of Public Works. This was approved in 1823; it was to make up a system of horse-drawn cars, canal boats and inclined planes, whereby a traveler from New York might reach Pittsburgh in about a week.

The system was acquired by the Pennsylvania Railroad (incorporated in 1846) and the term Main Line came to apply specifically to the gently rolling, tall-treed section on both sides of the westbound tracks as far as Paoli.

In 1957, as in its prime, the Main Line stands for solid respectability; for reasonable prosperity; for a subtly rigid code of social behavior, and, in a decreasing number of cases, a lavish social life.

She Hopes the Wheels of Industry Will Be Studded With Flowers

By YOLANDE GWIN

If Mrs. Marion Fisher of Syracuse, N.Y., has anything to do with it, the wheels of industry soon will be studded with flowers, the whole world will be a continuous flower show and the fashion dictators will say it with flowers in style, fabric and design.

In other words, flowers today have their own personality rating.

"Flowers are playing a large part in industry, because leaders are realizing that industrial plants can be beautified," said Mrs. Fisher, the first woman to head the 42-year-old Florist Telegraph Delivery Assn., which does business everywhere in the world except behind the Iron Curtain.

Mrs. Fisher is in town to attend the three-day meeting of the Georgia State Florists Assn. at the Dinkler Plaza Hotel.

FLOWER-CONSCIOUS

"The whole world is more flower-conscious than ever," she pointed out, and added that her organization (the largest of three in the nation, the others being the Flowers-By-Wire and Telegraph Delivery Service) wired $50 million worth of posies last year.

"Our aim during the next five years is $100 million," she said in a casual tone as she pinned a bright, red camellia on her suit. "Everything points to a new floral picture."

The changing style of women's fashions has a great deal to do with the change in the way flowers are worn. The more sophisticated styles call for more streamlined flowers.

"We have eliminated the gingerbread from corsages," she said. The "gingerbread" is masses of ribbon and tulle on a cluster of flowers.

"The decorators and the builders are using more flowers to complement the homes of today. The built-in planters are a case in point. The use of colors, too, makes flowers an acceptable, as well as beautiful, accessory."

Mrs. Fisher said the florists list Christmas, Easter, Mother's Day and Valentine's as the top flower seasons of the year. She said the fact that Mother's Day and Valentine's Day are just one-day events, the Easter and Christmas trade ranks higher.

EASTER IS TOPS

Of these two, Easter is tops because in the one week period prior to Easter there is a heavy concentration of buying and wiring flowers. The Christmas season usually spreads over a six-week period.

At the Rose Bowl parade in California on New Year's Day, the float entered by the FTDA won the presidents' trophy for the third time. The number of roses used on the float was the determining factor. The FTDA used 20,000 roses, 5,000 carnations, 200 bunches of pompon chrysanthemums, 2,000 hybrid orchids, to name a few of the flowers.

And how does Mrs. Fisher's garden grow? "Very well," she said. "I live in an apartment and can raise only house plants."

Church Groups Star In Mass Feeding Drill

By JEANNE HIGGINS DEAYER

Churches and church groups will play starring roles in feeding the masses in case of an air attack.

And men and women of 12 of Atlanta's churches have gone to school to learn all the techniques—from official Boy Scout style to Hawaiian imu cooking.

Under the sponsorship of the Salvation Army and directed by Capt. Burl D. Wyatt, the Atlanta Metropolitan Area of Civil Defense held its first mass feeding school for downtown churches Thursday and Friday at the Bellwood Community Center.

ATE THE RESULTS

The first day members of the group were told what to do, and how. The following day they applied their learning and ate the results—namely, beef stew, cole slaw, prunes and hot biscuits and coffee.

Mrs. Alberta Bishop, kitchen captain and representing the First Church of Christ Scientist, described it as quite an experience. And everyone gleefully kept an eye on the biscuits as they rose and turned beautifully brown in the barrel oven.

The stew was canned, since food from a can is considered safer from radiation than any other.

Opening day classes covered selecting and setting up a mass feeding area, providing for water purification and waste disposal, preventing food contamination and suggestions of foods to serve.

OIL DRUMS, TIN CANS

If you have oil drums and tin cans for cooking in the face of disaster you consider yourself equipped, said Ted Parker, North Atlanta area director of Boy Scouts.

It's when only rocks and leaves, dirt and sticks are available that one really improvises, he said. He went on to describe the Hawaiian imu method of lining a hole in the ground with fire, rocks and wet leaves. Food buried here will cook in an hour and a half or less and can remain for as much as six to eight hours without damage. He also described ways of living from natural foods when no food supply is available.

It is getting soup, fruit juice and hot drinks ready for those suffering from injuries or shock that Miss Margaret Burge, home economist, emphasized.

SIMPLEST MEAL

The simplest meal that can be prepared is fruit juice, cereal and a hot beverage. The next easiest to prepare is a potato soup, macaroni and cheese and a cabbage slaw. Canned beef stew is considered a good one-dish meal.

Powdered milk usually must be used. In this case, whole powdered milk is used.

J. W. Lemon, chief sanitary engineer of the Fulton County Health Department, discussed waste disposal and water supply and purification. He emphasized that water from an uncertain source should be boiled for one minute or disinfected by adding

Pity the Poor Queen

Pity the poor queen of England! As if it weren't bad enough to have an empire and assorted allies picking at her domestic life, she has all this . . . and seasickness, too!

As one who has suffered from seasickness I couldn't help a sort of sympathetic churning in the mid-section this morning when I read a story from Portugal about how stormy seas had affected the highly publicized, much vaunted "second honeymoon" of the royal couple.

It was a "nautical nightmare," wrote the AP writer. And then he went on to add that the duke was "an old sea dog" and apparently weathered the weather in fine shape but the young queen looked "pale and slightly upset."

If she weren't furious with him already, she certainly ought to be now. I know from personal experience. I married an old sea dog myself. And although we never put out to sea in any royal yachts we put out to sea in practically anything else that he could beg, borrow or rent. He loved to fish, he said, but the truth of the matter was that he just loved to be on the water and if the waves were rough and playful so much the better.

Although my acquaintance with dukes and princes is what you might call limited, I know these sea dog types and I can see him now. Up on deck in his oil skins, face into the wind, legs planted firmly apart, keeping his balance beautifully as the yacht rose up and then went into one of those sinking spells where you're absolutely sure there's nothing underneath it. And knowing how it must have been with the queen, all I can say is that he ought to be ashamed of himself acting such a way on a second honeymoon!

Of course, I don't know that any amount of tender attention would have helped her. Not the way she was feeling. She was undoubtedly stretched out somewhere with her eyes closed trying not to see anything in a wildly reeling, churning world. (I wonder if royal yachts like most other craft have a sort of stale, oily smell in a storm?) That famous fresh, pink-rose type English complexion she may have been pampering lately for just this trip slowly turned from green to blue and then a pale yellow. All the things she meant to say to him after four months' separation and maybe just a touch of a family fuss were forgotten because of the distressing commotion in her middle. Besides, how could she talk to him and him up there in that howling gale?

Of course, I don't know how the situation has been between Queen Elizabeth and her Philip. I always feel sorry for the abysmal lack of privacy for such young people. They are denied by the very nature of their positions in the world the inalienable right of all married couples—to sulk and fight and wildly disagree and then to make up again without anybody, even the in-laws, knowing that they have been at odds. They can't even indulge themselves in the slightest coolness without rocking an empire and setting tongues to wagging clear across the world.

If Elizabeth had wanted to punish Philip for not writing or something by giving him a frosty little hello kiss when they met, she would have to go to it at the risk of distressing newswire and television audiences the world over.

And now this storm at sea has done her out of the privilege of giving him a good tongue lashing and then a chance to make amends—at sea.

Poor Queen Elizabeth. She has always seemed such an even-tempered, well-behaved young woman but she must surely have a boiling point and I won't blame her a bit if she explodes. When she gets to feeling better, that is.

Rembert Sims Family Returns for Residence

Mr. and Mrs. Rembert Sims Jr. have returned to Atlanta after four years' residence in Florida and Illinois.

The Sims and their two daughters, 74-year-old Mary Nevitt and 5-year-old Jodie, went from one temperature extreme to the other when they moved from Winter Park, Fla., to Glen Ellyn, Ill., a suburb on the west side of Chicago. And their black dachshund, Tarbaby, traveled with them.

Mrs. Sims described two blizzards during their nine-month residence in the North. Said she, "It was the biggest charge of a lifetime; I guess I'll never see that much snow again! The children just loved the snow, and the dog, too, but now they're happy to see the green grass."

The Sims have been out-of-town members of the Cherokee Town and Country Club, and, of course, now plan to take an active part in its functions. Mr. Sims, who has returned to the home office of his firm, the American Security Insurance Co., grew up in Atlanta and attended the University of Georgia where he met Mrs. Sims.

Living temporarily in the Peachtree Hills section, they are being welcomed back with parties given by childhood and college friends.

Mrs. Sims, who said, "We're here for good in the sunny South," plans to rejoin her garden club, the Gardener's Club, and to take part in other activities as time goes by.

THE CHARLES JAGELS of Tuxedo road have returned from a 2½-week vacation in Florida and Havana with their "grown-up family." They took their children, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hardwick and Mr. and Mrs. James Starr—all of Atlanta—with them and, according to Mrs. Jagels, had a wonderful time. She added, "We were their age half the time and they were our age the other half."

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM G. BUSH will come up from Augusta for a weekend visit with her sister, Mrs. John Wyant, and Mr. Wyant of 225 Huntington Rd.

MRS. C. H. CARL, the sister-in-law of Mrs. James L. Kirkpatrick of Pineland road, is scheduled to arrive for a five-day visit with the Kirkpatricks on March 1. She and a friend, Mrs. Barbara Teeter, are driving down from their home in Atlantic, Iowa. Several parties are being planned for the Iowans before they return.

THE ANNUAL Martha Washington luncheon is being planned by the Atlanta chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, for Friday at 12:30 p.m. in the Craigie House on Piedmont avenue. Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Duncan of Decatur will be honored guests. Dr. Duncan will present a group of songs.

LEAVING FOR WILLIAMSBURG, VA., today are Mrs. H. D. Avra, junior director of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Chester E. Martin, chairman of conservation. They are flying up to attend the mid-winter conference of the Southeastern Council, General Federation. Mrs. Avra will take part in a forum, "Education of the Exceptional Child," and Mrs. Martin will give to each of the delegates a history of the Southeastern Council. Mrs. Martin and Mrs. R. C. Melton, chairman of mental health for the Georgia group, compiled the history.

Martin Won't Make Mistake Lewis Did, He'll Bring Along 2 Stout TV 'Crutches'

By VIRGINIA VIDA
Special to The Constitution

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Dean Martin isn't going to make the same mistake Jerry Lewis made in his first solo assignment on television. Dean has acquired a pair of "crutches" for his initial 60-minute flight on NBC in April. Bing Crosby and Ella Fitzgerald will be there to help Martin through the big one.

What a pity Jerry Lewis didn't use better judgment in his first solo trip on the network. Our heart went out to Jerry as he floundered around in some pitiful stunts and as he attempted to get going with some gag comedy.

What the two boys are just realizing is that they don't have a whole lot of talent individually. Together, they were a whole lot of a team — second to none in the field of comedy.

Jerry's big mistake was in not waiting on his TV debut until he had seasoned some with dates in night clubs and theaters. His appearance on the Academy Award telecast must have given him false confidence and he thought he could go out on a stage and belt out jokes without any help. Too bad he didn't have a Crosby or a Fitzgerald as a "crutch."

GENE KELLY has decided to cast his lot with TV. The MGM dancing star makes his debut in an unusual and tender love story about an engaging one-armed vagabond and an innocent deaf-mute. The story will take place in an impoverished section of the South.

Janice Rule will portray the mute who captivates the heart of the itinerant handyman and Agnes Moorehead will impersonate the girl's mother who is determined to land a son-in-law.

The clincher is the romance will be the virtues of a wife "who can't sass back."

Watch for it March 1 on CBS-TV.

ANN SOTHERN has definitely turned in her typewriter on the Private Secretary series and no amount of fan mail can make her go back to that role.

She will make most viewers forget she ever did such a part Wednesday night when she plays a school teacher in the Ford drama, "With No Regrets." She will put on 45 years during the 30-minute drama.

WRITERS of the Blondie series have been instructed to build up Arthur Lake's part. Seems the show is dropping dead when he's off camera.

TV's distaffers aren't doing too well of late. Only Lucille Ball shows up in TV's top 10 and she's been around so long you hardly think of her as being a woman. She's an institution.

There's a deal in the works to have Jack Palance do a telefilm series based on the Broadway musical, "Bliss Stockings." Palance is on the horns of a dilemma. They've come to the conclusion that to get big ratings, you've got to have big names. And big names cost so much the whole thing is a losing proposition. Bob Hope is trying to get Wally Cox for his show later this month.

Van Doren's Pot Rises to $143,000

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (AP) — Columbia University instructor Charles Van Doren won again tonight—increasing his winnings to $143,000. But he was also tied for the first time in weeks by a woman.

Van Doren continued his phenomenal winning streak on NBC-TV's "Twenty-One" quiz show, defeating by a thin margin a veteran magazine editor, Kenneth Gould, Scarsdale, N. Y.

However, in the second set Van Doren tied with a woman attorney, Mrs. Vivienne Nearing, and got no further winnings.

Van Doren started the program with $138,000 in previous winnings and won $5,000 in the first game of the show.

In that set he correctly identified the naval officer who said "England expects that every man will do his duty" (Lord Nelson), the name of Nelson's flagship (Victory) and the year of the battle involved (1805).

His opponent, Gould, answered all of the questions correctly except the year of the battle, which he named as 1804.

In the second half of that game, both Gould and Van Doren correctly named the seven British prime ministers between the end of World War I and the Japanese surrender in World War II.

In his contest with Mrs. Nearing, Van Doren chose different

Outler Urges Promotion for Protestant TV

Churches and laymen were urged Monday to promote the programs produced here by the Protestant Radio and TV Center. John M. Outler Jr., general manager of WSB and WSB-TV, spoke at the annual appreciation dinner given by the center. He also accepted an award given the station in appreciation for its "continued friendship" and for "contributions to the religious life" of the community.

Outler told the group that the center produces programs "equal to any in America in quality and content." But, he continued, the center can have its greatest success only when promoted "by local folk with the local stations."

During the evening it was revealed that time currently given by stations for the programs would amount to more than a million dollars annually.

A two-day celebration will be climaxed at 4 p.m. Tuesday with the dedication of the center's new television soundstage.

questions than did his opponent. He named the queens of three legendary Greek kings, identified a 1925 diplomatic instrument as the Locarno Pact and identified the signers for England, France, Italy and Czechoslovakia.

Engineering Explained to 500 Youths

About 500 students from Northside high schools Monday night attended a "What's Your Line" quiz program at the Second-Pence de Leon Baptist Church. The program was sponsored by the Buckhead Rotary Club and moderated by Don Herbert, TV's "Mr. Wizard" and General Electric progress reporter.

Questions on all phases of engineering were submitted by the students. Herbert gave demonstrations of engineering concepts and discussed requirements and opportunities in the field.

Herbert will address an assembly of science students at 9:35 a.m. Tuesday at Hoke Smith High School, and another group at 3:30 p.m. in the Georgia Tech auditorium.

The students were told there are excellent opportunities for young women in modern electronics, such as computing machines.

The Buckhead Rotarians will sponsor similar panels next month on business and commerce, and the professions.

Billy GrahamGod's Gospel
Only Answer To Dilemma

QUESTION: Dear Dr. Graham, do you think the Gospel of the first century is relevant for our present time?—

ANSWER: I might reply by asking you the same thing but stating it negatively. Do you think the Gospel of the first century is not relevant for our present time? Has human personality changed significantly? Has human nature evidenced improvement recently? Are men and women gradually overcoming immorality, dishonesty, greed, passion, love of pleasure, hatred and all the other evils named in the Bible?

Certainly the Gospel of the first century is relevant, and more than relevant, it is the only answer to man's present moral and spiritual dilemma. As long as attempts are made to answer the deep spiritual problems by humanistic methods, we can only plan on failure. Not until the faith which was once and for all delivered unto the saints is preached in its fullness will we approach a remedy for our 20th century dilemma.

KEEP WELLBrucellosis Continues a Bad Problem

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

False, economy plays a role in the spread of brucellosis among farm families. Its members drink contaminated milk that cannot be sold because farmers are too thrifty to throw it away. Brucellosis is a hard nut to crack and continues to plague man and animals despite our knowledge of its cause and transmission.

Brucellosis has become a prominent industrial disease among veterinarians, farmers and beef and hog butchers.

The rest of us are potential candidates whenever we ingest unpasteurized milk obtained from infected cows and goats.

Bang's disease, the counterpart of this disease in animals, leads to abortion among cattle, and in this respect is a serious threat to the economy of the farmer. Brucellosis is contagious among animals but not between humans. The original description of the disorder years ago stated that the victim went through alternating periods of fever, malaise, and weakness followed by periods of relative comfort.

This undulating character of the fever explains why the condition was known as undulant fever.

But, in this country, the chronic form is more common, with a constant fever. Initially the temperature may go as high as 104 degrees F., with chills, sweats, and generalized aching, including backache. In others, fever is less noticeable but increasing lassitude, weakness, and aching are present, especially in the afternoon.

Appetite is lost and although the individual realizes something is wrong he is unable to pin it down to a specific organ.

There is no doubt about the diagnosis when the causative organism is isolated from the blood. But this is difficult to do and most authorities rely upon other laboratory tests. The body develops protective antibodies against the disease and when they are detected in sufficient concentration in the blood, the situation is clear.

The skin-test is not as popular as it was in the past. It usually is positive in anyone who was exposed to the infection but does not offer information as to when. On the strength of this test, thousands of persons blame brucellosis for their bizarre symptoms which actually may be due to anything from family troubles to bats in the belfry. These people are satisfied when given a diagnosis of a disease that burns itself out in time.

MOSCOW, Feb. 18 (AP)—The Soviet government announced today the establishment of diplomatic relations with Ceylon and the appointment of Vladimir G. Yakovlev as first ambassador.

"Former President Herbert Hoover adds his opinion that another serious depression may come, recalling his own experiences in the devastating last years of the roaring twenties." ... News Item

From old Ben Harrison to Ike ... I've wandered down this winding pike ... and since the day that I was born ... (which surely wasn't yester-morn) ... each president who came along ... has found that often things go wrong ...

"Depressions," "panics" and the like ... have troubled all, from Ben to Ike ... we "prosper for a season," then ... something beyond the power of men ... a war, a famine or a drought ... blows all the hopeful beacons out ...

Perhaps more progress has been made ... by people, in the past decade ... than in the centuries, long past ... and, maybe, it's too good to last ... although we hope, with all our heart ... prosperity will not depart.

I wouldn't be the one to say ... that "all of this shall pass away" ... but since it did it in the past ... we'd better watch that overcast ... which indicates a storm may come ... so I'll be seeing you, old chum ... back in the bread-line where we met ... when brother Hoover was "all wet."

UNBEATEN CREDENTIALS RATE B-P AS JC TOURNEY FAVORITE

By PAUL ATKINSON

A fellow goes out on a limb: The winner in the State Junior College Tournament that opens Tuesday at Macon? Peg it Brewster Parker.

Reasons? An undefeated junior college slate should suffice. That and a JC-tested outfit coached by Glenn Wilkes and a hardy crew headed by Gene (Turkey) Wells, Ralph Miller and Ken Everett.

A "finals" opponent for Brewster? Georgia Southwestern, with 6-4 Heywood Hobgood and Marion (Judy) Shiver, a dead-eye fellow Coach Godfrey Knight labels "the best shot I've ever seen." the prime reasons.

The tournament opens with five games in Mercer's gym, an edifice that seats over 2,000. It runs through Saturday, with Friday an off day because of Mercer's meeting with Tampa.

CAGE SHORTS—Middle Georgia had a vigorous week and may be making a concerted move to harry the JC favorites. The men of CMH College lost to Brewster Parker 80-70 at Mt. Vernon last Monday, but rebounded strong to knock off No. 2-seeded Abraham Baldwin, 88-85. . . . North Georgia got a 34-point performance from Warren (Goose) Camp Friday in a 96-63 win over Valdosta State. H. A. Jarvis had 19 for the losers. . . . Woody Richardson hit a field goal moments deep in the second half to give Mercer a lead it never relinquished Friday at Winter Haven, Fla., in a 77-64 win over Rollins College. Richardson had 15 points with John McGriff potting 20. . . . Young Harris hit the century mark for the sixth time this season Friday with a 112-53 lashing of North Georgia Trade School. Sub John Mathison led the Mountain Lions with 24 points, John Adecock had 23. . . . Bobby Gene Harris showed the scoring form he's capable of Friday with 22 points in an 83-55 Gordon decision over Marietta Institute. . . . LaGrange College got three 20-points-plus shows to down the Georgia Frosh, 97-58, Friday. Jarrell Underwood had 27, Joe Copeland, 24, and Ralph Johnson, 24. . . . Georgia Teachers got a late 60-43 lead, and subs carried out a 66-61 win over Newberry Thursday. Chet Curry's 14 topped the Frosh.

CAN YOU TOP THIS DEPT.—The only thing that stopped Lake Hamilton's hot Mountain Lions Friday in a 112-53 win over NGTS was a possum. The little animal came scurrying across the floor, and halted proceedings. Could this be another defense similar to the one?

SCHEDULE CORNER—Friday: Tampa at Mercer. Saturday: Tampa at Georgia Teachers.

MORE CAGE SHORTS—Mercer got a 104-78 decision from Rollins last Monday on a 32-point effort by forward Bobby Graham. . . . Tallmadge Lee hit 21 points the same evening to lead NGTS to a 95-67 victory over South Georgia Trade School. . . . Gordon had eight double-digit scorers last Tuesday in a 120-53 massacre of West Georgia.

Murphy Returns Milton McRee And a Big Habit of Winning

Crown-Defending Eagles Idle as City Meet Starts

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Everything was new about the Murphy High basketball team this year except Milton McRee and a habit—that of winning. The two old things had a great deal to do with each other.

If the City League coaches were given the right to "draft" one player from the loop for their own team—a la pro football—chances are that the 6-4 McRee would be the player named by the other 12 members.

McRee, whose team won the Northern Division league championship for the second straight year and will begin a bid for a second straight Region 3-AAA tournament crown, is one of the big reasons the Eagles copped those crowns and were third place finishers in the Constitution-sponsored state tournament a year ago.

Coach Bonnie Davis, who succeeded Dr. Morris Phelps to the Murphy cage helm this season, calls McRee one of the best basketball players he has ever seen. "He's undoubtedly the finest rebounder anywhere," begins Davis. "He goes after the ball with a reckless abandon that you'll see in few players. He can dunk the ball with both hands, and not many 6-4 players can do that."

Other coaches will be alarmed, but not surprised, to learn that McRee (pronounced McRay) has not been up to par all year. He finished as third leading scorer in the city with a 15.5 average, getting 201 points in 13 games. But he played four or five games in a weakened condition because of a throat infection. It was feared he had suffered a sprained ankle in the final 58-38 victory over Bass Saturday night.

But he's going to be ready to go when Murphy, which drew a bye, plays its first game in the 3-AAA tourney Thursday night. Five boys' games will open the meet Tuesday at the Roosevelt and O'Keefe gyms.

Murphy lost all of its 1956 stars and wasn't expected to finish on top this year. But the presence of McRee and two fellow "moon fixers" added the first cage team Davis ever coached for a full year to win 15 of 20 starts and compile a 10-2 divisional record.

Bob Crutchfield, 6-4½ senior, who was the Eagles' sixth man in 1956, and Morris Mitchell, 6-5 sophomore who finished fourth among loop scorers with a 14.4 average, plus McRee have made this a brilliant 1957 outfit.

Crutchfield averaged eight points a game, but he was going along at a 20 per-game clip before Christmas. He slipped and fell and suffered a badly bruised leg just before the holidays, and it has hampered his shooting ever since.

Mitchell averaged 15-20 on the 1956 B team as a frosh, shoots well with either hand and figures to develop into one of the city's all-time greats before he's through.

Paul Ard, 5-11 senior who played some last year, and Johnny Guthrie, who won a regular position in mid-January, averaged 9.8 and 9.3 points-per-outing. They aren't the guards that Myron Moore and Norman King were a year ago. But that can be said about any other pair you can name anywhere.

Both Ard and Guthrie have been high point men for the Eagles in a game or two. Bob Bettill, 6-0 junior, is an especially polished defensive player. And Melvin Clay, a 10th-grader up from the B team, is a better defensive performer than the regular guards.

Akers-Led Jackets Face 26-Game Slate

Pittard To Field Bee Team; Inman Named Coach of Frosh

By BERT PRATHER

Georgia Tech's baseball team, with senior lettermen available at every position except right field, will face a 26-game schedule this spring, in addition to an exhibition tilt with the Atlanta Crackers on April 9.

Genial Joe Pittard, starting his 12th season at the helm of the Jacket diamond department, has the huge squad working indoors and will hustle them out to Rose Bowl Field the first afternoon he feels the weather is warm enough.

Pittard, realizing that with so many seniors around something must be done about building for the future, will field a Bee team for the first time since he took command of the baseballers at the Flats in 1946.

This means Pittard will have three teams under his command. Dick Inman, recently added to the Jacket football staff, will serve as Pittard's first lieutenant, replacing the departed Bob Rossen. Inman will coach the freshmen, and assist Joe with the Bees.

Lane Akers, crack shortstop and a three-year letterman, will captain the '57 Jackets and no doubt will draw a lot of pro scouts to the Flats. He's rated one of the best big league prospects to show here since young Billy Moran of Russell pocketed $40,000 for signing with the Cleveland Indians.

Other Tech seniors back battling the youngsters for their old jobs are Vince Terry, first base; Gray Potter, second base; Johnny Menger, third base; Bobby Do-

Terry alternated between the outfield and first last season, but with Bill Cohen graduated, first is his unless some sophomore pushes him off.

The pitching staff will be headed by seniors Danny MacGregor; Bob Patton and Jack Jordan and juniors Jimbo Towery, Dave Teed and Joe Taylor. Joining them after basketball season will be Cowboy Bud Blemker, a real standout for the frosh last year.

The schedule: March 18-19—Stations at DeLand, Fla.; March 20—Ohio State at Winter Park, Fla.; March 21—North Carolina at Winter Park; March 22—Florida at Gainesville (double-header); March 23—Wake Forest here; April 5—Kentucky here (double-header); April 10—Atlanta Crackers at Ponce de Leon (exhibition); April 12-13—Georgia here; April 19—Fleming at Knoxville (double-header); April 26—Auburn here; April 27—Auburn here (double-header); May 3-4—Georgia at Athens; May 6—Clemson here; May 10—Clemson at Clemson; May 9-10—Rollins here.

Columbus Cinches Crown; Darrah Nears Record

LaGrange-Jordan Outcome Is Key To Albany Bid for Tourney Spot

By ELLWOOD MOYER

Special to The Constitution

COLUMBUS, Feb. 18—Three big happenings took place on the Region 1-AAA high school basketball front last week: (1) Columbus clinched its first crown in the seven years the loop has been organized; (2) Baker's Gordon Darrah neared an all-time scoring record and (3) Albany swept into contention for a spot in the state tournament.

The first two eventualities were expected. The third wasn't. But Coach Graham Lowe's Albany Indians closed their region campaign with a 61-54 upset of Lanier and took over fourth place and the inside track for the region's fourth slot in the Feb. 27-March 2 state meet at Georgia Tech, beginning Wednesday of next week.

Albany, in winning its fifth game in its last seven for a 6-8 record, left the issue squarely in the laps of Jordan and fast-coming LaGrange. Jordan (5-7) can actually win the spot by beating both champion Columbus and LaGrange, or force a playoff with Albany by winning either game. LaGrange (4-8) must beat Baker Tuesday and Jordan Friday to stalemate Albany for fourth place.

Darrah virtually assured Baker's state defending kings of having the 1-AAA scoring leader for the fourth straight year. The University of Georgia-bound lad needs only four points against LaGrange to set a new scoring mark.

He has hit 104 field goals and 96 free throws in 13 loop games for a 23.38 points-per-game average. He has 304 points and the loop mark is 307 set by Baker's Jimmy Lee in 1955.

Population Called Problem, Not Cure

By JIM MONTGOMERY

The population of the United States, now growing at the rate of one person every 12 seconds, reached 170,000,000 Friday.

It will climb to 175,000,000 in less than two years. And by the time babies being born this very minute become teen-agers, this nation will count 200,000,000 citizens—even at the current birth rate.

But population experts look for an acceleration in the early 1960s.

That's when the World War II boom crop of babies that is now bursting the seams of our school facilities will start reaching marriageable age—perhaps bringing on a new bumper crop.

Almost without exception, business leaders are citing these prospects for the next decade as the stimulants of an even better standard of living and greater economic expansion.

"More people will consume more goods," they say, "and more goods will mean more jobs . . . of course."

This population panacea is widely publicized.

What's more, few have shown the temerity to question it since the dire predictions of Thomas Malthus in 1798 failed to materialize.

It became "unfashionable" even to consider Malthus' premise that a mounting population could not be sustained; that the excess would die of hunger or pestilence—or in war.

Now, however, nearly 100 years later, the Malthusian specter is regaining the serious attention of thoughtful men.

One of these is a nationally recognized Atlanta economist—Dr. Earle L. Rauber, vice president and director of research of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta.

Some of his observations, delivered at a recent meeting of leading American scientists, were published this month by the Population Reference Bureau, Inc.

"There is a danger," he warns, "that the coming hosts of babies may engulf us in the end unless we bestir ourselves in time."

"We are apparently caught, or will soon be caught, in a race between productivity and reproduction," with the rise or fall in our future standard of living dependent on the outcome of that race.

Rauber contends the even now there are not enough physical resources "for us to do everything we want to do at one time," and that this scarcity will be much greater in the future "unless science can pull off more miracles than now seem probable."

Economic Expansion Held Not Too Spectacular

But what of the past decade—just the past 10 years—of economic expansion?

"Not as spectacular . . . as we might have expected," he says. After deflating today's dollars and allowing for the population increase since World War II, Rauber finds that:

1. Our economy is producing only $100 more of real goods and services per capita.
2. The average person is getting only $65 a year more to spend or save.

Obviously, then, the "enormous," the "fantastic" spending for new plants and equipment is not yielding anything like a commensurate improvement in the quantity of goods and services at the disposal of the average person, adds the economist.

He says much of this money is needed just to replace old plants, equip newcomers to the labor force and support nonproductive persons—something akin to the "Alice in Wonderland" place where "you have to run as hard as you can just to stay in one place."

"To get anywhere else, you have to run twice that fast."

Fortunately, Dr. Rauber notes, Americans so far have been able to have all the things they want—more children, shorter hours, more goods, more vacations and earlier retirement.

But he doubts "that we can keep on doing so for long."

Asks 'Rational Thinking, Action' by Leaders

The "one sure way out of this difficulty," he adds, "would be the voluntary and sufficiently drastic limitation of the birth rate for the sake of the future."

However, doubting the effectiveness of such a program at this time, Dr. Rauber calls for "rational thinking and action" by the "few key figures upon whose shoulders" our civilization will move forward. These key figures, he says, are:

1. Scientists, who must "deliberately bend more of their efforts toward capital-saving and resource-conserving processes."
2. Businessmen, who "should throw the weight of their influence against all waste and extravagance and in favor of the most economical use of the resources over which they have disposal."
3. Bankers, who should "see that credit is used to increase the ability of the economy to sustain the life of the population, and not merely to facilitate the squandering of our resources in trivial and often unnecessary consumption by a thoughtless public."

Dr. Rauber says the rest of us—as individuals and corporations—"may also do something in this common task."

"We can release, if we try, the virtues of frugality and saving," because "we'll need all the savings we can lay our hands on to raise the army of babies that even now looms over the horizon."

Meanwhile, America's population continues to expand. Some 25 babies were born in the U.S. while you were reading this article.

Soviet Engineering Schools Outstrip U.S., Zsuffa Warns

Russia—which last year graduated three times as many engineers as the U.S.—"may win" the battle of industrial and economic development unless ways are found to shore up American education.

That was the sentiment expressed here Monday by Col. Leslie F. Zsuffa, public relations director of Georgia Tech. at a meeting of the Georgia Engineering Society.

Placing the burden for action on the federal and state governments, Zsuffa cited numerous U.S.-Russian education comparisons to underline what he termed the need for "encouraging more of our qualified young people to enter the vital professions of science, engineering and education."

The production of engineers in Russia caught up with U.S. production six years ago, Zsuffa said, and in 1956 the Soviets turned out 71,000 engineers compared to our 26,000.

Ten years of Russian six-days-a-week elementary and high schooling is the equivalent of our 12-year program, and the curriculum in 47 per cent science in grades five through 10, the official said. The Russian teacher-pupil ratio is 20-1, and, due to "stiffer exams," less than 25 per cent of students entering the first grade finish high school.

Zsuffa, a member of the Citizens Committee for Science Education, noted that the Soviets have 760 colleges and universities and 3,500 "technicums"—semi-professional schools. These compare with 216 U.S. engineering colleges.

Moreover, Zsuffa said, Russian colleges require "about twice as many subjects and some 2,000 more instruction hours" than does Massachusetts Institute of Technology. And a Russian student graduating from "one of the larger universities" will have as much training as an American master of science graduate, he added.

Russia devotes 5 per cent of its national income to education, and more than 90 million people are taking extension courses, Zsuffa said.

'Can Do Job Ourselves,' Trade Parley Told Here

By BOB WILLIMON

"We've got the feeling we can do the job ourselves if the government will just let us alone awhile."

This statement—made by Easley, S. C., businessman Roy C. McCall and pertaining to South Carolina's school construction needs—drew sustained applause here Monday from some 375 persons attending the U. S. Chamber of Commerce's Congressional Issue Clinic.

McCall quoted South Carolina Schools Supt. Jesse T. Anderson as refusing a "soon to be published report" that the state has no classrooms for more than 55,000 pupils. "There is no excess of pupils," McCall said.

ONLY 20 SCHOOLS

McCall added that South Carolina's $6 million share of the President's proposed $2 billion school construction program would afford only 20 new schools, while "in our little Pickens County alone we recently built six new schools on our own."

"We built a fine highway system while paying the federal government more in gasoline taxes than we got in return," McCall said. "Just give South Carolina a little more time and it can do the same for its school system."

McCall was one of seven regional panelists parrying "questions from the floor" at the U. S. Chamber's ninth clinic designed to "alert, organize and equip businessmen to speak up on legislation that affects business climate."

ON FREE MARKET

John S. Coleman, president of the national chamber and leader of the clinic "Airplane," warned in his keynote address of a "dangerous trend against the free market principle." He urged businessmen to speak up on legislation that affects business climate.

By a showing of hands, the group voted overwhelmingly in favor of local taxation for school needs. Similar votes favored reduced federal spending, pay-as-you-go postal rates, tax reduction, the removal of restriction on agriculture, freedom to merge businesses without 60-day prior notice to the government and the control of labor officials with regard to membership property in the same manner stockholders control corporate management.

Also taking part in the one-day meeting were national chamber officials Arthur H. Motley, Clarence R. Miles and Arch N. Booth. Welcoming the group to Atlanta were Ivan Allen Jr., president of the Georgia chamber, and F. M. Bird, president of the Atlanta chamber.

Dr. Emerson P. Schmidt, economic research director for the national chamber, said 1957 "could be the best year in history for business." He added, however, that it likely would result from a "combination of small gains, as no particular force—such as booms in the auto industry or building trades—has come to the fore."

Higher Interest on Bonds Can Cut Classrooms From New Schools

By REILMAN MORIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Last June the people in Chelsea, Mich., decided to build a new high school. The two sections of the present school are 50 and 75 years old, respectively. And apart from their age, they are getting crowded. Enrollment is over 500 now and Chelsea, a pretty little town near great industrial areas, is growing.

Charles J. Cameron, the alert, quiet-spoken superintendent of schools, said he expected more than 50, "and maybe 100," additional students within a year.

So, in June, the people voted to spend $2,200,000 for a new one. They approved a bond issue for that amount, in other words, they decided to go into the market and borrow the money.

The district has a good credit rating. Advertising for bids, however, at 4 per cent interest, there were no takers for the total. In October, the bids were reoffered at 5 per cent.

SIX FIGURES
This time there were three bids. The bonds were sold at 4.18126 per cent interest.

Now what do those six figures after the decimal point mean in money?

Cameron estimates they will amount to $77,000 by the time the loan is repaid. The architects were working on blueprints in his office during this conversation. I asked them what they could build for $77,000.

"Almost four classrooms," they said. "Or one shop building."

Since construction won't start for a while, the money for the school has been reinvested. Not all the $77,000 will be lost.

"But we were caught in the squeeze," Cameron said.

This case, with different details, can be duplicated a hundredfold. It is happening all over the country, and where population pressures are greatest, the situation is even more acute.

Even New York, main center of the "money market," feels it. "It costs closer to $30,000 for a classroom here," said Dr. David G. Saiton, superintendent of schools in Long Beach, N.Y.

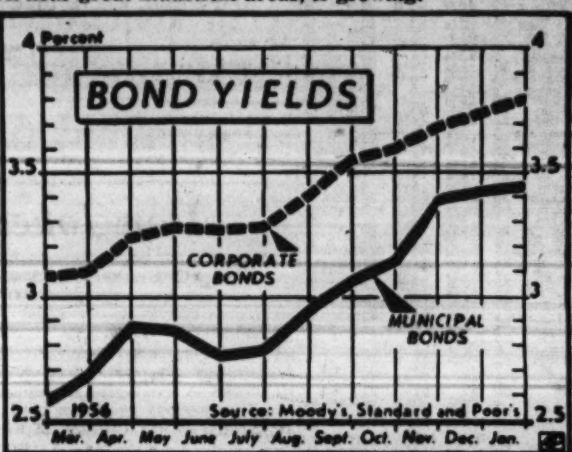

Interest rates have gone in a few years from 2 1/2 per cent to 4 1/2. "If the increased cost of the money is $100,000, that means you have lost three classrooms."

DEBT SERVICE

"School construction can't be postponed for a more favorable market. Hence the debt service for school districts in the years ahead will be consuming millions of dollars that should be going into teachers' salaries and the building of new classrooms."

These are examples of the meaning of the phrase "tight money." A few years ago, school districts obtained funds—"hired" them, as Calvin Coolidge used to say—at much lower costs.

But today, the spectacular expansion of population and the

BOND YIELDS RISE AS MONEY TIGHTENS

This Makes It Costlier to Build Schools, Sewers and Roads

American economy has created a tremendous demand for money. States and local governments are trying to borrow it for schools, hospitals, sewers—necessities of their citizens. Big business needs it for new plants and to modernize machines. Small business needs it for short-term financing. Individuals want it for homes, automobiles, electrical appliances, usually bought with installment payments.

LIKE A TRACTOR

Think of a million dollars as a machine, say a tractor. If scores of farmers and builders all want to rent the tractor at the same time, the charges on it will go up. That's what has made money "tight."

Along with this, costs of construction of all types have risen sharply in a few years.

Figures for New York indicate that the average cost per elementary school pupil for new buildings has gone from $1,411 to $2,067 in two years.

What is the figure in your community? Various measures are being taken, or proposed, to relieve the situation.

Some state governments have used pension fund pools to buy bonds of small communities that can't afford commercial rates.

President Eisenhower has proposed $2,200,000,000 in federal construction funds.

And Florida's Gov. Leroy Collins recently proposed that the federal government make invest-

Settling Market Declines Slightly

Profit-Taking Nips Advance As Trading Slows and Firms

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (AP)—The stock market settled down gently today after its exertion of last week, registering a slight decline on average in the slowest trading of two weeks.

Profit-taking nipped an early continuation of Friday's vigorous rally. The Friday leap from the abyssal lows of last week to a level even higher than existed before the sharp break of a week ago provided ample opportunities to cash gains.

After the active and higher opening, the pace slackened gradually, and with it the early firmness. By mid-session the list was irregular. The fall-off in values was fairly steady to the close.

Trading was so quiet, however, that the decline was regarded as encouraging from the bullish viewpoint, indicating lack of emphasis on the lowering of prices. Pivotal issues showed losses ranging generally from fractions to around a point but a few gainers survived. The over-all picture was more mixed than anything, with declines outnumbering advances by only 455 to 438. There were 1,127 issues traded, making it the narrowest market since Jan. 30. There were 19 new 1956-57 lows and three new highs.

Volume totaled 1,800,000 shares compared with 2,060,000 on Friday. AVERAGE OFF 30 CENTS The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 30 cents to $172.20 with the industrials down 50 cents, the rails down 40 cents and the utilities down 20 cents.

Most divisions were higher at the start and some issues were well ahead but dropped their winnings later. Lukens Steel, up around 2 in early dealings, closed with a net gain of only 1/4. Despite the new round of copper price cuts, Kennecott raced ahead around 3 at the start and kept a net gain of 1. Union Carbide retained 1/4 of a gain of about 2 made earlier.

The American Stock Exchange was irregular on volume of 830,000 shares compared with 750,000 Friday.
